Relief Bill Provides for 20 Millions In Loans to Nation's Needy Farmers

Compromise Settlement is Reached after Hoover Caused Deadlock

IS GIVEN APPROVAL

Conditions of Appropriation are Made Known

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7.—The compromise drought relief settlement, under which a $20,000,000 fund will be provided for food loans to stricken farmers, paved the way today to an orderly adjournment of the dying seventy-first congress—unless the insurgent bloc of the senate foment an unexpected revolt.

The new drought relief plan had the endorsement of the White House and of Republican and Democratic leaders in house and senate. Only an insurgent — Senator Brookhart (R) of Iowa—protested it was "unsatisfactory" and not certain to relieve starvation conditions in the drought areas. Brookhart insisted the appropriation be made outright, instead of for loans to drought sufferers.

Having pacified Democratic leaders, the administration was prepared to deal harshly with any insurgent rebellion. Under present plans, any filibustering tactics by the insurgents against appropriation bills will be met by invoking the seldom-used "gag rule" of cloture, which limits debate and throttle dileatory maneuvers. Consequently, administration leaders hopefully boasted there was no longer any damage of a special session of the new congress being forced after March 4.

The $20,000,000 food loan measure will settle the chief controversy between White House and senate.

Some other relief measures remain to be enacted and the senate today considered one, to authorize a $100,000,000 increase in the public building program. This bill provides $65,000,000 of this sum could be spent in the states within the next year.

The bill itself would appripriate $20,000,000 under these conditions:

TWO BORROWERS

"1. Make advances or loans to individuals in the drought and (or) storm or hail stricken areas for the purpose of assisting in forming local agricultural credit corporations, livestock loan companies or like organizations or of increasing the capital stock of such corporations, companies or organizations qualified to do business with federal intermediate credit banks, or to which such privileges may be extended, and of making loans to individuals upon the security of the capital stock of such corporations, companies or organizations, and,

"2. To make advances or loans to farmers for crop production in the drought and (or) storm stricken or hail stricken areas of the United States."

Another province allow loans specifically for feeding cows, hogs, chickens and other security" as prescribed by the secretary of agriculture.

Democratic leaders declared 'food loans' 'could be made under the provision for "agricultural rehabilitation."

Mrs. Joseph W. Adkins was called to Delphos by the death of a dear friend, Mrs. Louis Huber who passed away Thursday. The funeral will be Sunday.

Her 'White Penny' Goes to Relieve Distress

Little five-year-old Rosemary Enrisse, of Webster, N. Y., believes in doing her part to alleviate distress. She sent her mite to President Hoover, with a request that the nation's chief would use her "white penny" to buy some bread, milk and candy for the little boys and girls who are hungry.

RAINFALL NOT NEAR ENOUGH

Slight Downfall Not Sufficient To Help Situation; Haul Water To Towns.

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 7—Soaking up a rain that was a mere "drop in the bucket" as compared with needs, thirsty Ohio today scanned the skies for more relief while Governor George White's emergency relief cabinet proceeded with plans to haul water to arid-stricken districts in the southern portion of the state.

Rainfall in scattered areas last night, according to weather prognosticators and members of the state's relief committee, was not sufficient to bring any appreciable relief to drought sufferers although occasional rains Saturday and Sunday may afford some of the long-looked-for aid.

Central Ohio recorded a rainfall of .28 inches—"not enough to do much good," it was said. Other districts of the state, likewise, benefited from the mere drizzle only slightly.

With suffering intense in southern districts of the state, tank trucks, manned by state highway crews, including Barnesville Woodsfield, New Concord, Meigs-co. towns and any others in need, Adjutant General Frank D. Henderson, chairman of the governor's relief committee, said.

In Meigs-co. water is being hauled from the Ohio river at a cost of 1-2 cent a gallon, the state health department learned today.

Although the situation is not too bright, adequate water supplies have been found in New Matamoras, Washington, Scioto in Harrison county, and Carrollton, county seat of Carroll health investigators reported.

Meanwhile, efforts to relieve the state's unemployment situation gained impetus today when emergency highway crews of 20 men in each of 25 suffering counties were placed at work on salaries of $18 a week. The jobs were assigned to the unemployed selected by committees in each of the counties.

JAMES CARTER, COLORED, TAKEN

Funeral srvices for James Oliver Carter, 45, Chillicothe barber, husband of Mrs. Mae Meyers Carter, 601 S. Scioto-st, this city, who died at the home of his mother in Chillicothe Thursday evening, after a short illness, will be held at his home in Chillicothe Sunday afternoon, with Rev. Reynolds and Rev. Jones, officiating. Burial will be made in Grandview.

SAVE PATIENTS FROM HOSPITAL

MONTREAL, Feb. 7—Twenty bed-ridden patients were rescued by firemen today when flames swept the post graduate private hospital. The fire was controlled after a two-hour fight. Damage was estimated at $30,000.

FEAR DETROIT GANG WAR IS AGAIN BEGUN

Suspect in Buckley Murder Case Found Murdered in Hideout

OTHERS TO FOLLOW

Prosecutor Makes Statement after Report Fray

DETROIT, Feb. 7.—Traced to his arsenal hide-out by rival gangsters, Chester Lamare, alleged underworld czar and sought by police since last July when Gerald E. Buckley, crime-crusading radio announcer was assassinated, was murdered here today by gangland hoodlums.

Lamare, aged 47, is also alleged by authorities to have engineered the famous "fish market" murders, so-called because the victims were "big-time" bootleggers posing as proprietors of fish markets. Slayings of the latter men are said to have precipitated the underworld into the carnival of 17 gangster slayings in nearly as many days last July. The latter were in turn climaxed by the sensational murder of the popular radio announcer, who was "put on the spot" in the Lasalle hotel lobby.

Lamare's wife stumbled across the purported gang chief's body when she returned from a corner drug store early today. A bullet hole in the back told the story of the violent death.

Prosecutor Harry S. Toy, immediately notified by police, predicted that the Lamare killing was probably the signal for a new outbreak of gang warfare here.

"Other shootings are almost sure to follow," the prosecutor said.

Police who searched Lamare's hideout home after his wife had reported the murder found a small arsenal in the place. Six revolvers, a tear gas gun, a repeating rifle, an automatic rifle and hand grenades were found undisturbed. More than 4,000 rounds of ammunition were also found.

Lamare had been diligently sought by authorities since the Buckley slaying when a special grand jury started to probe vice and crime conditions here. Lamare was regarded by police as a "key figure" in the underworld. Police believed that he knew the "inside story" of the Buckley killing although they did not implicate him directly in it.

The gangster's body was found slumped forward in the kitchen of the hide-out. No resistance had been made Lamare apparently thinking that a rap on the rear door was his wife returning from the store. He answered to see his caller step aside and then to become the target for a round of machine gun bullets. Only one found its mark but it caused instant death.

FILES PETITION IN BANKRUPTCY

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 7.—Two voluntary petitions in bankruptcy involving more than $65,000 were filed in federal district court here today by Max Friedman of Chillicothe, and Charles S. Hollerbaugh of Bremen.

Hollerbaugh claimed liabilities of $34,000 and listed his assets as $12,877. He asked exemption of $150 in property. Friedman liabilities amounted to $15,813.58 and his assets totaled $2,900, of which he claimed $500 exemption.

AUTO HITS TRAIN DETROIT MEN DIE

DETROIT, Feb. 7.—Three men were instantly killed today when their automobile, which was said to have been traveling at a terrific rate of speed, crashed into a Pere Marquette railroad train at a plainly-marked crossing here.

The speeding automobile struck the second car behind the locomotive, bringing instant death to Albert Thompson, 26, Frederick Walker, 28, and Benjamin Barnett, 25, all of Detroit.

BREAKS WRIST

Charles Jackson, 13, colored, S. Scioto-st suffered a fractured wrist when he fell at the high school building, S. Court-st, while skating Thursday.

"Beautify City" Season Is Near

The present is an appropriate time when thought and effort should be directed to the aiding of nature by planting trees, flowers and shrubs. Just a little effort and care on the part of the citizens of Circleville, in the planting and culture of such ornaments and adornments, will certainly bring joy and satisfaction.

It is manifestly unfair to ourselves, and more particularly to those of the future, to fail to do that which will make this city more attractive. Nature is entitled to help from mankind.

Make Circleville so attractive that home shall be all that is desired and the city so beautiful to the visitor that he can truthfully say that nature and man have united in a wonderful work. There is no easier and better way to accomplish this than direct individual effort in the propagation of trees, flowers, and shrubs.

HOLD ALLEGED ACCOMPLICE IN HOLDUPS HERE

DENIES THE CHARGE

Said to Have Been Connected with Ferguson

Sheriff Charles Radcliff, Deputy Bob Armstrong and Officer William McCrady arrested Elmer Brown, this city, in a grocey store at Carper's Hill, Ross-co, late Friday, and placed him in the county jail on an investigation charge. He is held in connection with a series of holdups of Kroger stores in this vicinity, in which he is alleged to have been with Henry Ferguson, 35, being held in Hamilton, on a charge of holding up a manager and two clerks in a cham grocery there.

Sheriff Radcliff and aides learned Friday that Brown had been released by Hamilton-co authorities, after he had supposedly proved to the authorities his innocence, and they immediately left for Chillicothe, after riding over fourteen or fifteen miles of hill country they finally found Brown in a grocery store hiding under a counter.

Sheriff Radcliff believes both Ferguson and Brown played a part in the holdups at Hamilton and Circleville.

Not only chain store robberies can be placed against Ferguson, authorities say, but several other thefts, including theft of hogs from H. M. Crites' farms, south of town.

CHARGE NEGLECT

Charging gross neglect of duty, Evelyn Mae Weaver, Columbus, filed petition for divorce in common pleas court Friday against Casper M. Weaver, this city. The petition states the couple was married in March, 1927, and has one child.

J. B. Powell, Columbus, is attorney for the plaintiff.

BUREAU MEETS

Board of directors of the Pickaway-co farm bureau met this afternoon at 2 o'clock in the farm bureau home on E. Main-st. The program was comprised of re-organization of the board, business reports for the month's operations, reports from delegates to the Ohio Farm Bureau annual meeting in Columbus and a discussion of plans for future operations.

ATTEND CHURCH

Circleville Hy-Y club will attend church services in a body at Calvary Evangelical church, Washington and Mill-sts, Sunday morning at 10:15. Rev. C. W. Ruhlman is pastor.

Activity of Boy Scouts In Pickaway

Boy Scout activities are occupying the eye of the general public throughout Pickaway-co and up to this time excellent development in the number of troops and in the district organization itself has been noted. A report was given at a district committee meeting at Hanley's Friday at noon which showed the work being done.

Following is a summary of business done at this meeting.

Ward Robinson was appointed to secure a Pickaway-co district scout flag.

H. W. Plum was named to contact each minister in the district to have a sermon on scouting on Sunday, Feb. 15. The 21st anniversary of this area in scouting is from Feb. 8 to Feb. 14.

During anniversary week merchants will have window displays in each community where troops are organized.

The scout leders' training course has 44 men enrolled with an average attendance of 29.

The Ashville troop under Daniel Boone is making headway and so in the recently organized troop at New Holland. Members of this troop are Homer Ater, Eugene Briggs, Paul Davis, Darrell Finch, George Gooley, Earl Hickle, Thoborn Jennings, Edward Kirkpatrick, Robert Lewis, John Maxey, Robert Mace, Earl Morris, Sheryll Shipley, Gene Stookey, Carlos Vincent and Harold Wright. Members of the troop committee are H. L. Rhude, F. L. Pierson. Roy Stewart, Floyd James, E. C. McQuay, Harley Mace, W. E. Hobble, and Earl Wright. The scoutmaster is D. H. Roth and his assistant is L. M. Tarbill.

The troop is known as No. 146.

Other troops being organized are at the Church of the Brethren where a scoutmaster and assistant and one committeeman is in training. The Pickaway-twp school has selected a troop committee and has secured a scoutmaster and assistant in the training course.

The matter of selecting assistant commissioners under T. O. Gilliland in Williamsport, New Holland, Ashville, South Bloomfied, and the Walnut-twp school as well as Circleville was discussed. W. O. Dountz, Ashville, and H. L. Rhude, New Holland, were named representatives on the Pickaway-co district committee.

R. L. Brehmer was appointed to select the place to hold a county indoor rally in April. Emmitt L. Crist will select a place to hold a county-wide campfire in May.

M. DAUGHERTY TRIAL MONDAY

Final Arrangements Are Being Made In Fayette-Co Courts For Start.

WASHINGTON C. H., O., Feb. 7—Preparations were being completed today for the opening of the trial here Monday of Mal S. Daugherty, former president of the defunct Ohio State bank, on charges of irregularities in the handling of the bank's funds.

O.C. Gray, Columbus, state banking superintendent, is among the witnesses for the state who have been summoned by Prosecuting Attorney Norman E. McLean. Other witnesses will include former employes of the bank and local business men.

The prosecutor asked Gray to bring various reports dealing with the condition of the bank prior to its closing a year ago, also a number of letters said to have been received by the state banking department from Daugherty when the latter was president of the defunct bank.

The witnesses have been requested to appear Wednesday, the prosecutor anticipating that the jury will have been impaneled by that time.

FOUR-YEAR-OLD BURNS TO DEATH

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 7.—Four-year-old Margaret Cardi, who developed a liking for candles and matches at her sisters' birthday party yesterday, is dead today, a victim of her new-found toys.

Margaret died in White Cross hospital here this morning, a few hours after the party. The mother, burned trying to rescue her from fire set to her clothing by flames from the candles Margaret finally found, may recover.

Triplet Calves Reported

Triplet calves were born Dec. 29, 1930, at the institution for the feeble-minded at Orient. These calves were uniform in color and size, weighing 57, 58, and 59 pounds at birth. They were all females and seemed to be in perfect health but when about three weeks old two of them died suddenly. The third one appears to be all right as yet.

The dairy herd at the Orient institution is one of the largest in the state, numbering 380 heads of which 190 are milking cows, producing 775 gallons of milk daily. This herd is maintained to produce milk for the institution and also

Soldiers Bonus War Not Ended

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7.—While administration leaders of the House went forward today with their plan for a compromise on cash payment of the soldiers' "bonus," the militant original backers of the cash payment served notice they would fight it.

The compromise plan, which includes increasing the loan value of certificates, is understood to have been approved by Secretary of the Treasury Mellon.

TO RAISE VALUE

Although Mellon has flatly opposed changes in the present law under which adjusted service compensation certificates are payable in 1945, he is said to be willing to raise their loan value to aid needy veterans.

The House leaders plan was laid before the treasury by Rep. Bacharach (R) of New Jersey after he had predicted the compromise plan would be enacted in 10 days.

By increasing the loan value from 22 to 44 to 50 per cent and reducing the interest rate from six to four per cent, aid would be given to needy veterans, Bacharach maintained. Cost of the plan would be under $500,000,000 and would entail little treasury financing, he said.

Rep. Patman (D) of Texas, who has led the fight for immediate cash payment of the three and a half billions of adjusted service certificates, spurned the compromise.

VETS TO BORROW

The plan, he said, would permit veterans to borrow, on the average, about $280 more than they now may borrow.

The proposal of Owen D. Young, chairman of the General Electric Company, that partial cash payment be made to needy veterans has been rejected by both administration leaders and the Patman group. The plan, Patman maintained, would force veterans to make a "paupers' oath."

At present the veterans bureau has loaned $260,000,000 on the certificates. About 48 per cent of the veterans have borrowed. Patman, however, estimates that with private loans made by banks the total of veterans borrowing on their certificates is 75 per cent.

CINCI. PASSES 49-CENT RATE

Fight Over Gas Ordinance Is Expected In That City; Mt. Sterling Busy.

Cincinnati's city council has taken the initiative in its war on proposed gas rates and has passed a schedule establishing a rate of 49 cents per 1,000 cubic feet, which will become effective when the present contract expires next week. The Union Gas & Electric Co., will seek to enjoin the rate either in the courts or before the Ohio utilities commission.

More than 50 men, members of the Mt. Sterling Chamber of Commerce, met this week and one of the important questions discussed was the gas situation and rate. The directors of the chamber were authorized to study the situation and to have a test of the gas made.

HOSPITAL NEWS

Dr. Smith of Columbus, performed the operation.

A daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. Warren Baker, W. Main-st, Friday evening at Berger Hospital.

Fred Faust of Columbus, and George Hoffman of Tarlton, who have been in the hospital suffering from injuries received in an automobile wreck near Laurelville earlier this week, were released from the hospital Saturday morning.

Donald Parrott of Washington C. H., who was operated on by Dr. Smith of Columbus, sometime ago, was released Saturday morning.

CLEAN CLOTHES FOR THE NEEDY

The Barnhill Dry Cleaning and Laundry Co. announces that it will dry clean, free of charge, any clothing which residents of the city have that would be useful to the needy. Barnhills will then deliver the clothing to the Benevolent society or similar organizations for distribution.

The telephone number is 710.

WASHINGTON ROBBER HELD

Youth Admits Holding-up Fayette-Co Bank and Implication In Two Others.

DAYTON, O., Feb. 7—Following his arrest upon identification through a photograph, a 20-year old youth giving his name as William H. Fermald of Springfield, today confessed to participation in the attempted holdup of the Commercial bank at Delphos, according to police.

The youth was seen as he was walking along the street here by four detectives who sighted him from the automobile in which they were riding. The detectives were C. E. Gross, O. L. Kincaid, Herbert Gaylor and Herman Mague.

Taken to the police station for questioning Fermald broke down and admitted that he was implicated in three recent Ohio bank stick ups.

In addition to the Delphos attempt, Fermald confessed, police alleged, that he held up a bank in Washington C H single handed on Jan. 27, looting the institution of $3,127. On Jan. 21 police quoted the youth as admitting he stuck up a bank at West Liberty and obtained $1,200.

"I was just an "outside" man on the Delphos job" Fermald was quoted as confessing he implicated a youth now under arrest in Lima as being his accomplice on the Commercial bank robbery attempt, police said.

4 ARE KILLED IN OHIO TRAIN, CAR COLLISION

Baltimore & Ohio Crossing at Hamilton, Scene Of Disaster Today

TWO WOMEN VICTIMS

Mangled Bodies Dragged Far Down Track by Train

HAMILTON, O., Feb. 7.—Four persons, including two women, were killed today when their automobile was struck and carried down the tracks for 800 yards by a fast Baltimore & Ohio freight train near the B. & O. passenger depot here.

The victims were identified as Mrs. Emily Collins, 29, a divorcee; Sarah Jones, 25, her sister; James Hines, 48, all of Hamilton, and Herbert Campbell, 46, of Dayton. Campbell was married and has two children.

The automibile and the bodies of the four occupants were so badly mangled that no kind of identification could be made for several hours. Ownership of the automobile was learned from a piece of hub-cap and the license plates.

Wreckage of the car and the bodies were strewn along the tracks for more than four city blocks.

Cause of the tragedy could not be determined but it was believed the driver of the car and the other occupants failed to see the fast north-bound freight and that the auto was driven onto the tracks directly into the path of the train.

Several hours after the accident friends of Miss Jones identified pieces of her clothing. They told authorities they knew her sister was with her during the evening and furnished the name of one of their men companions.

Officials investigating the tragedy were hampered by the lack of evidence that the tragedy left in its wake.

The train was traveling at such a high rate of speed that it was unable to stop until it had gone eight city blocks. The car and victims were dragged under the wheels of the locomotive and carried down the tracks or strewn along the side.

There were no witnesses as the crossing was not guarded by a watchman.

ASHVILLE SUPPLIES RESIDENTS WATER

Residents of Ashville are being supplied with water from a 60-foot well recently drilled in the central part of the village through action of city council to furnish the water supply to the many wells which are dry, as the result of the rainfall.

Dallas Griffith and Dan Wise, town employees are hauling the supply of water, which amounts to 3,600 gallons every day. The water is hauled in a large 600 gallon tank and is delivered to the wells at the homes of those who wish it, at the rate of $1 per load, this amount being charged for labor and expense of hauling it.

Farmers and other people who wish the supply may also come to the village electric pump, and get water at the cost of 50 cents per load. Many farmers have taken advantage of this service.

20 ARE HURT IN SUBWAY CRASH

NEW YORK, Feb. 7.—Twenty persons were treated for shock and minor injuries, and more than 200 others were calmed with difficulty, following a collision between two trains in the Lexington Avenue subway today.

The crash occurred when a three-car string of empties bumped into the rear of a six-car train in which about 150 men and women were passengers. Many of the passengers were asleep in their seats when the collision occurred, and some of them were thrown the length of the car.

EXPLOSION MAY BE FATAL TO 2

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Feb. 7.—Twenty-nine persons today were suffering from injuries, as the result of an explosion which blew a manhole cover through the bottom of a taxicab in front of the Orpheum theater. It was believed the explosion was caused when accumulated gas in a service tunnel was ignited. Two of the victims may die.

A great crowd was gathered in front of the theater to watch film celebrities depart when the explosion occurred and caused a near panic.

Prosecutor Harry S. Toy, immediately notified by police, predicted that the Lamare killing was probably the signal for a new outbreak of gang warfare here.

"Other shootings are almost sure to follow," the prosecutor said.

Police who searched Lamare's hideout home after his wife had reported the murder found a small arsenal in the place. Six revolvers, a tear gas gun, a repeating rifle, an automatic rifle and hand grenades were found undisturbed. More than 4,000 rounds of ammunition were also found.

Lamare had been diligently sought by authorities since the Buckley slaying when a special grand jury started to probe vice and crime conditions here. Lamare was regarded by police as a "key figure" in the underworld. Police believed that he knew the "inside story" of the Buckley killing although they did not implicate him directly in it.

The gangster's body was found slumped forward in the kitchen of the hide-out. No resistance had been made Lamare apparently thinking that a rap on the rear door was his wife returning from the store. He answered to see his caller step aside and then to become the target for a round of machine gun bullets. Only one found its mark but it caused instant death.

FILES PETITION IN BANKRUPTCY

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 7.—Two voluntary petitions in bankruptcy involving more than $65,000 were filed in federal district court here today by Max Friedman of Chillicothe, and Charles S. Hollerbaugh of Bremen.

Hollerbaugh claimed liabilities of $34,000 and listed his assets as $12,877. He asked exemption of $150 in property. Friedman liabilities amounted to $15,813.58 and his assets totaled $2,900, of which he claimed $500 exemption.

"Beautify City" Season Is Near

The present is an appropriate time when thought and effort should be directed to the aiding of nature by planting trees, flowers and shrubs. Just a little effort and care on the part of the citizens of Circleville, in the planting and culture of such ornaments and adornments, will certainly bring joy and satisfaction.

It is manifestly unfair to ourselves, and more particularly to those of the future, to fail to do that which will make this city more attractive. Nature is entitled to help from mankind.

Make Circleville so attractive that home shall be all that is desired and the city so beautiful to the visitor that he can truthfully say that nature and man have united in a wonderful work. There is no easier and better way to accomplish this than direct individual effort in the propagation of trees, flowers, and shrubs.

HOLD ALLEGED ACCOMPLICE IN HOLDUPS HERE

DENIES THE CHARGE

Said to Have Been Connected with Ferguson

Sheriff Charles Radcliff, Deputy Bob Armstrong and Officer William McCrady arrested Elmer Brown, this city, in a grocey store at Carper's Hill, Ross-co, late Friday, and placed him in the county jail on an investigation charge. He is held in connection with a series of holdups of Kroger stores in this vicinity, in which he is alleged to have been with Henry Ferguson, 35, being held in Hamilton, on a charge of holding up a manager and two clerks in a chain grocery there.

Sheriff Radcliff and aides learned Friday that Brown had been released by Hamilton-co authorities, after he had supposedly proved to the authorities his innocence, and they immediately left for Chillicothe, after riding over fourteen or fifteen miles of hill country they finally found Brown in a grocery store hiding under a counter.

Sheriff Radcliff believes both Ferguson and Brown played a part in the holdups at Hamilton and Circleville.

Not only chain store robberies can be placed against Ferguson, authorities say, but several other thefts, including theft of hogs from H. M. Crites' farms, south of town.

CHARGE NEGLECT

Charging gross neglect of duty, Evelyn Mae Weaver, Columbus, filed petition for divorce in common pleas court Friday against Casper M. Weaver, this city. The petition states the couple was married in March, 1927, and has one child.

J. B. Powell, Columbus, is attorney for the plaintiff.

Activity of Boy Scouts In Pickaway

Boy Scout activities are occupying the eye of the general public throughout Pickaway-co and up to this time excellent development in the number of troops and in the district organization itself has been noted. A report was given at a district committee meeting at Hanley's Friday at noon which showed the work being done.

Following is a summary of business done at this meeting.

Ward Robinson was appointed to secure a Pickaway-co district scout flag.

H. W. Plum was named to contact each minister in the district to have a sermon on scouting on Sunday, Feb. 15. The 21st anniversary of this area in scouting is from Feb. 8 to Feb. 14.

During anniversary week merchants will have window displays in each community where troops are organized.

The scout leders' training course has 44 men enrolled with an average attendance of 29.

The Ashville troop under Daniel Boone is making headway and so in the recently organized troop at New Holland. Members of this troop are Homer Ater, Eugene Briggs, Paul Davis, Darrell Finch, George Gooley, Earl Hickle, Thoborn Jennings, Edward Kirkpatrick, Robert Lewis, John Maxey, Robert Mace, Earl Morris, Sheryll Shipley, Gene Stookey, Carlos Vincent and Harold Wright. Members of the troop committee are H. L. Rhude, F. L. Pierson, Roy Stewart, Floyd James, E. C. McQuay, Harley Mace, W. E. Hobble, and Earl Wright. The scoutmaster is D. H. Roth and his assistant is L. M. Tarbill.

The troop is known as No. 146.

Other troops being organized are at the Church of the Brethren where a scoutmaster and assistant and one committeeman is in training. The Pickaway-twp school has selected a troop committee and has secured a scoutmaster and assistant in the training course.

The matter of selecting assistand commissioners under T. O. Gilliland in Williamsport, New Holland, Ashville, South Bloomfied, and the Walnut-twp school as well as Circleville was discussed. W. O. Dountz, Ashville, and H. L. Rhude, New Holland, were named representatives on the Pickaway-co district committee.

R. L. Brehmer was appointed to select the place to hold a county indoor rally in April. Emmitt L. Crist will select a place to hold a county-wide campfire in May.

M. DAUGHERTY TRIAL MONDAY

Final Arrangements Are Being Made In Fayette-Co Courts For Start.

WASHINGTON C. H., O., Feb. 7—Preparations were being completed today for the opening of the trial here Monday of Mal S. Daugherty, former president of the defunct Ohio State bank, on charges of irregularities in the handling of the bank's funds.

O.C. Gray, Columbus ,state banking superintendent, is among the witnesses for the state who have been summoned by Prosecuting Attorney Norman E. McLean. Other witnesses will include former employes of the bank and local business men.

The prosecutor asked Gray to bring various reports dealing with the condition of the bank prior to its closing a year ago, also a number of letters said to have been received by the state banking department from Daugherty when the latter was president of the defunct bank.

The witnesses have been requested to appear Wednesday, the prosecutor anticipating that the jury will have been impaneled by that time.

Triplet Calves Reported

Triplet calves were born Dec. 29, 1930, at the institution for the feeble-minded at Orient. These calves were uniform in color and size, weighing 57, 58, and 59 pounds at birth. They were all females and seemed to be in perfect health but when about three weeks old two of them died suddenly. The third one appears to be all right as yet.

The dairy herd at the Orient institution is one of the largest in the state, numbering 380 heads of which 190 are milking cows, producing 775 gallons of milk daily. This herd is maintained to produce milk for the institution and also

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7.—While administration leaders of the House went forward today with their plan for a compromise on cash payment of the soldiers' "bonus," the militant original backers of the cash payment served notice they would fight it.

The compromise plan, which includes increasing the loan value of certificates, is understood to have been approved by Secretary of the Treasury Mellon.

TO RAISE VALUE

Although Mellon has flatly opposed changes in the present law under which adjusted service compensation certificates are payable in 1945, he is said to be willing to raise their loan value to aid needy veterans.

The House leaders plan was laid before the treasury by Rep. Bacharach (R) of New Jersey, after he had predicted the compromise plan would be enacted in 10 days.

By increasing the loan value from 22 to 44 to 50 per cent and reducing the interest rate from six to four per cent, aid would be given to needy veterans, Bacharach maintained. Cost of the plan would be under $500,000,000 and would entail little treasury financing, he said.

Rep. Patman (D) of Texas, who has led the fight for immediate cash payment of the three and a half billions of adjusted service certificates, spurned the compromise.

VETS TO BORROW

The plan, he said, would permit veterans to borrow, on the average, about $280 more than they now may borrow.

The proposal of Owen D. Young, chairman of the General Electric Company, that partial cash payment be made to needy veterans has been rejected by both administration leaders and the Patman group. The plan, Patman maintained, would force veterans to make a "paupers' oath."

At present the veterans bureau has loaned $260,000,000 on the certificates. About 48 per cent of the veterans have borrowed. Patman, however, estimates that with private loans made by banks the total of veterans borrowing on their certificates is 75 per cent.

CINCI. PASSES 49-CENT RATE

Fight Over Gas Ordinance Is Expected In That City; Mt. Sterling Busy.

Cincinnati's city council has taken the initiative in its war on proposed gas rates and has passed a schedule establishing a rate of 49 cents per 1,000 cubic feet, which will become effective when the present contract expires next week. The Union Gas & Electric Co., will seek to enjoin the rate either in the courts or before the Ohio utilities commission.

More than 50 men, members of the Mt. Sterling Chamber of Commerce, met this week and one of the important questions discussed was the gas situation and rate. The directors of the chamber were authorized to study the situation and to have a test of the gas made.

4 ARE KILLED IN OHIO TRAIN, CAR COLLISION

Baltimore & Ohio Crossing at Hamilton, Scene Of Disaster Today

TWO WOMEN VICTIMS

Mangled Bodies Dragged Far Down Track by Train

HAMILTON, O., Feb. 7.—Four persons, including two women, were killed today when their automobile was struck and carried down the tracks for 800 yards by a fast Baltimore & Ohio freight train near the B. & O. passenger depot here.

The victims were identified as Mrs. Emily Collins, 29, a divorcee; Sarah Jones, 25, her sister; Jasper Hines, 48, all of Hamilton, and Herbert Campbell, 46, of Dayton. Campbell was married and has two children.

The automibile and the bodies of the four occupants were so badly mangled that no kind of identification could be made for several hours. Ownership of the automobile was learned from a piece of hub-cap and the license plates.

Wreckage of the car and the bodies were strewn along the tracks for more than four city blocks.

Cause of the tragedy could not be determined but it was believed the driver of the car and the other occupants failed to see the fast north-bound freight and that the auto was driven onto the tracks directly into the path of the train.

Several hours after the accident, friends of Miss Jones identified pieces of her clothing. They told authorities they knew her sister was with her during the evening and furnished the name of one of their men companions.

The train was traveling at such a high rate of speed that it was unable to stop until it had gone eight city blocks. The car and the victims were crushed beneath the wheels of the locomotive and was carried down the tracks or strewn along the side.

There were no witnesses as the crossing was not guarded by a watchman.

WASHINGTON ROBBER HELD

DAYTON, O., Feb. 7—Following his arrest upon identification through a photograph, a 20-year old youth giving his name as William H. Fermald of Springfield, today confessed to participation in the attempted holdup of the Commercial bank at Delphos, according to police.

The youth was seen as he was walking along the street here by four detectives who sighted him from the automobile in which they were riding. The detectives were C. E. Gross, O. L. Kincaid, Herbert Gaylor and Herman Mague.

Taken to the police station for questioning Fermald broke down and admitted that he was implicated in three recent Ohio bank stick ups.

In addition to the Delphos attempt, Fermald confessed, police alleged, that he held up a bank in Washington C. H. single handed on Jan. 27, looting the institution of $2,127. On Jan. 21 police quoted the youth as admitting he stuck up a bank at West Liberty and obtained $1,200.

"I was just an "outside' 'man on the Delphos job' 'Fermald was quoted as confessing he implicated a youth now under arrest in Lima as being his accomplice on the Commercial bank robbery attempt, police said.

ASHVILLE SUPPLIES RESIDENTS WATER

Residents of Ashville are being supplied with water from a 90-foot well recently drilled in the central part of the village through action of city council to furnish a water supply to the many wells which are dry, as the result of no rainfall.

Dallas Griffith and Dan Wine, town employees are hauling the supply of water, which exceeds 3,600 gallons every day. The water is hauled in a large 600 gallon tank and is delivered to the wells at the homes of those who wish it at the rate of $1 per load, this amount being charged for labor and expense of hauling it.

Farmers and other people who wish the supply may also come to the village electric pump, and get water at the cost of 50 cents per load. Many farmers have taken advantage of this service.

20 ARE HURT IN SUBWAY CRASH

NEW YORK, Feb. 7.—Twenty persons were treated for shock and minor injuries, and more than 200 others were calmed with difficulty, following a collision between two trains in the Lexington Avenue subway today.

The crash occurred when a three-car string of empties bumped into the rear of a six-car train in which about 150 men and women were passengers. Many of the passengers were asleep in their seats when the collision occurred, and some of them were thrown the length of the car.

EXPLOSION MAY BE FATAL TO 2

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Feb. 7.—Twenty-nine persons today were suffering from injureies, as the result of an explosion which blew a manhole cover through the bottom of a taxicab in front of the Orpheum theater. It was believed the explosion was caused when accumulated gas in a service tunnel was ignited. Two of the victims may die.

A great crowd was gathered in front of the theater to watch film celebrities depart when the explosion occurred and caused a near panic.

Tigers Lose Thriller To Bexley Lion Five

Hold Lead With Minute to Play

Holding a 29-28 lead until the last minute of play, when they allowed Leahy, a substitute and Lytle of Bexley, guard to sink two goals from the middle of the floor, Coach Herberholz's high school Tigers lost a tough game at Bexley 30-29 Friday. The game was somewhat of a replica of the Bexley-Tiger game played here before Christmas, with exception that the locals out-played the Lions of Bexley. Leahy was sent in by Coach Carlton Smith when he was told there was one minute to go. Lytle first hit the hoop to make the score 29-28, followed by Leahy, who shot the margin making goal.

The game was a 'scrap' from start to finish, with the score changing about a dozen times. Circleville scored the first points of the game when Davis and Purcell each had a free throw. Bexley held for a while, but Stark came in and hit the hoop, followed soon by Ketner, who had a long shot, making the score 4-2. From then on, the score was ever-changing, and when the first quarter ended, Bexley had a two-point lead, the score 8-6.

LOCALS IN LEAD

The second quarter saw the locals break loose and began hitting the hoop from several angles. Purcell and Good each scoring freely for the locals, and Ketner and Lytle for Bexley, brought the score up to 15-14.

The second half was a battle, as a few noses were bleeding, etc., and each team was certainly fighting. Bexley shot a free throw at the beginning of this period and brought the score to 16-14, however the Tigers shot a goal and tied the score 16-16, following closely with another goal to obtain 18, while their opponents had another free throw, and the Tigers led by a one point margin, 18 to 17. Tigers hit the hoop again and had a free throw, and Bexley had a couple long shots, and a short one to tie the score at the end of the third quarter 23-23. This was one of the hardest fought sessions of the game, and many times the Red and Blacks would try for the hoop, and the ball would roll around the edges and fall out.

The fight went on in the last quarter, when Good hit the hoop to break the tie, followed by Ketner of Bexley, who did the same and again tied the score 25-25 McClure had a long shot and again broke the tie, and Bexley had a free throw, and the score was 27-26 Circleville held the lead with J. Hegele contributing another bucket, until the last minute, when Lytle and Leahy won the game

Hagley and Katherman, both of Columbus, officiated.

Tables Turned as Butler Faces Trial

When Brigadier-General Smedley Butler goes on trial in general courtmartial, before Rear Admiral David F. Sellers (left below), he will only be taking a new role in an old drama. At left above he is shown as witness in the famous trial of Col. Williams, whom he accused of drinking a cocktail when they both were serving at San Diego, Cal. He often was the accuser, also, when Safety Director in Philadelphia. At right, he is shown as he left City Hall when he was fired. Right below, he is shown at Tien-tsin, China, in 1927, where he won commendation for his work. His courtmartial because of accusations against Benito Mussolini only marks a new episode in his stormy career as a member of the U. S. Marine Corps.

Charlie Chaplin Speaks In Defense of Talkies

NEW YORK. Feb. 6—Charlie Chaplin, wordless comedian, for years recorded as an arch-foe to the talking motion pictures ,today spoke up for the "talkies' '

"I am not opposed to the talking moving pictures as an invention and am planning perhaps to direct a screen drama with dialogue for my next production," Chaplain said in an interview. "However, I shall not appear in the picture "

Screenland's first pantomimist arrived here for the opening of his latest picture "City Lights", interpreted by critics as a defiance to the talkie industry. The picture has sound--music composed by Chaplin himself--but no dialogue. There is also a "gurgling" scene in which Chaplain admitted was a satire on the talkies.

Chaplins' first publicly announced conversion to the talkies was tinctured with his traditional individual viewpoint.

"The talkies have a great deal of vitality--they have added something to the silent medium," he said. "Of course, they are here to stay--but I prefer to appear without dialogue.

"If I ever do a talkie it will not be as Charlie Chaplain' '

He denied that his latest picture was "a slap in the face" at the talking pictures

"I simply feel that my picture is something to entertain and the public will come to see it even if there are no words to it," he said.

"Talkies are easier to make.

"I don't think there is the same beauty in talkies as in silent pictures.

"There are not any talkies yet which can compare with the great silent pictures."

His plan to direct a dialogue picture was based on a desire to experiment with a new artistic medium, he said

Chaplain's arrival suggested an opening night. A crowd swirled madly outside as he stepped off the train. Photographers fought for good positions Chaplain retired to his car and had breakfast. Faces of curiosity seekers were pressed against the window pane during the operation.

Chaplain told of having dinner with Dr. Albert Einstein, the German physicist, in Hollywood before the coast premiere of his picture.

"He is a simple, honest man," he said "We talked of pictures and music I didn't say a word about science Dr Einstein is greatly interested in the talkies.' '

The comedian was asked if he intended to remarry. He and Lita Grey Chaplin were recently divorced.

"Unfortunately, there is nobody on the horizon," Chaplain smiled.

Chaplin said he spent two years and $1,500,000 in making "City Lights' 'which opens here Friday.

SECONDS LOSE TO BEXLEY 5

Score is 17-6 When Offense and Defense Both Fail to Function.

Circleville high school reserves dropped a lop-sided basket-ball fray to Bexley reserves in a preliminary to the Bexley-Tiger clash in the former gym Friday night The score was 17 to 6. The subs were outclassed in size and experience, and had much trouble in hitting the hoop.

In the second quarter the Bexleyites increased their score to 9, while the locals were unable to gain another point. Several of the locals were tossing the ball around any way, and attempting to hit the hoop in a sloppy fashion, which did not work, and as a result at the end of the half were on the short end of the score, 9-2.

In the last session Radcliff and Rader each had a goal, which was the only score during the rest of the game, while Benjamin and Turner of Bexley were shooting in buckets from all angles, and contributed four more goals to their score to make the game end 17-6

Local reserves did not play their regular game, as offensive was not working, and defense was bad.

Katherman and Hagley of Columbus refereed the tilt.

TASK OF PERMITTING FUNDS FOR STARVING NEAR CLIMAX

WAHINGTON Feb 6 — The delicate task of phasing a sentence, premitting use of federal funds to buy food for starving Americans but without saying so in specific language, today stood in the way of a compromise between Pres. Hoover and the senate on drought relief.

There was a general agreenment the compromise would appropriate $15,000,000 more for drought relief and an indication it would be directed to the secetary of agriculture for administration. But a dozen leaders were working on language, which will be suitable not only to the president but to the militant heads of the Democratic-insurgent coalition in the senate.

It appeared the ultimate proposition would merely provide the money should be made available to be spent by the secretary of agriculture "if, when and as found necessary" to relief suffering in the drought areas. It was felt this language would meet the president's objections and also satisfy the coalition

The president has told his spokesmen he will veto any bill, appropriating federal funds direct to the American Red Cross. hence, the name of that organization will not appear in the compromise. He has also said he will veto any language directly authorizing the purchase of food with federal funds. so, the word fod will be excluded from the authorization.

When asked about the compromise maneuvers, Sen Caraway (D) of Arkanas, who initiated the demand for relief of humans in the drought area, said:

"No sincere person, interested in reheving distress among persons hungry and cold, will quibble about the method of relief."

Other senate pointed out that the 'if, as and when" plan would avoid every objection made thus far against a federal approriation

As the presidental and coalition spokesmen grew more cheerful about a drought relief compromise, it was agreed only a permanent impasse over relief could provoke a special session.

PROPOSAL FOR CASH PAYMENT OF BONUS IS NOW REJECTED

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—Proposals for immediate full cash payment of veterans adjusted service compensation certificates totalling three and a half billion dollars have been definitely rejected by both Republican and Democratic leaders in Congress, it was learned today.

The decision, reached informally was declared a victory for leading bankers and financiers who have testified before the ways and means committee that issuance of bonds in this amount would prevent business recovery.

"No one wants to take the responsibility of preventing business recovery," said a leading Republican, confirming the understanding.

The suggestions of Chairman Owen D. Young of the General Electric company were believed to form the basis for a compromise between extreme proposals to aid the veterans.

The Young plan, which calls for advancement of $300,000,000 to $500,000,000 on the certificates to needy veterans, attracted wide attention. It could be accomplished, it was believed, without the sale of new bonds, as a part of the victory loan refinancing operations the treasury must carry on next year.

Other plans designed to aid needy veterans include cashing of certificates for 200,000 to 300,000 veterans out of work, estimated to total $200,000,000; and increase of loan value of the certificates

The suggestion of Young, the many financiers and industrialists most liberal advanced by the many financiers and industrialists called before the committee, apparently made a deep impression His attitude, together with that of President Rome C. Stephenson of the American Bankers Association, who also urged aid for needy veterans, brought from Rep. Crowther (R) of New York the statement:

"Mr Young and Mr. Stephenson are the only two appearing before us who have shown a tinge of humanity."

With hearings before the ways and means committee expected to close today, backers of veterans aid will demand quick action.

Rep. Garner of Texas, Democratic member, after winning from Rep. Hawley (R) of Oregon, chairman, that Ogden Mills, under-secretary of the treasury, submitted the names of many witnesses, charged that financiers and industrialists were called for the sole purpose of killing the cash payment plan.

COURT SUIT MAY FOLLOW BATTLE

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 7.—Possible court action loomed today as the aftermath of the asserted studio dressing room battle between Buster Keaton, film comedian, and Kathleen Key, former screen actress, from which Keaton emerged with a multitude of cuts and scratches.

Both principals today were reported to have earnestly sought legal counsel, but neither would state definitely what, it any, court action would be taken.

LIFE SENTENCE ENDED FOR MAN

MOUNDSVILLE, W. Va., Feb. 7.—After serving 14 years of a life sentence, Domenico Trimarcia, 37-year-old Preston-co murderer, has been granted a conditional pardon from the West Virginia state penitentiary here by Governor William G. Conley, it was announced today by Warden A. C. Scroggins. He will be deported.

Does Circleville need a revival? Let the thoughtful answer. Sin is playing its role in the lives of individuals to such an extent that it should be checked by a mighty revival of religion. Where is such a revival to begin? It must begin with the church. How many are willing to pay the price in real heart-searching prayer until we see a mighty revival sweeping over our city? God help us all to pay.

The FIRST UNITED BRETHREN IN CHRIST.
E. Main-st.
W. F. Rutherford, Pastor.

The church has always been an important factor in the molding and shaping of human conduct. This month we celebrate the birth of two great Americans, Lincoln and Washington, each of them was a firm believer in the church of the Living God. While Lincoln was president he attended church regularly. In doing this he has made a great impression on the mind of the world. Philip Brooks places the value of Lincoln in these words, "May God make us worthy of the memory of Abraham Lincoln." At the services of our church we will try and point out the things that made Lincoln great.

Our services open at 9:15. Study period subject, "The World's Greatest Teacher."

Morning worship at 10:30. Subject, "What Made Lincoln Great?"

THE VALUE OF MEDITATION

A leading doctor has said, "Church-going is conducive to health." He proved his point by showing that periodical relaxation is absolutely essential in these days of living at a high pressure with a strain upon the nerves and blood vessels that is terrific.

The hush of the sanctuary, the meditative service of worship produces a quietness of mind and soul which soothes both body and spirit.

Why not accept the invitation and come to church next Sunday?

Creamed Comments On S.S. Lesson

©1927 D. CARL YODER

Luke expresses the teachings of the Sermon on the Mount by practical examples of the teachings of Jesus. Jesus would saturate society with the spirit of love; this is a long process but progress is made when viewed by centuries.

Vs. 27, 28. "But I say unto you that hear, love your enemies, do good to them that hate you. Bless them that curse you, pray for them that despitefully use you." One may not have for his enemies the same affection that he has for his friends but one is to have the spirit of goodwill that seeks to do the best thing for them and to remove offenses and restore mutual faith and fellowship.

V. 29. "To him that smiteth thee on one cheek offer also the other; and from him that taketh away thy cloak, withhold not thy coat also." We ought to prefer bearing patiently with injustices. Only for moral reasons does a true disciple of Christ appeal to law.

V. 31. "And as ye would that men should do to you, do ye also to them likewise." Actions and conduct are to be determined by wisdom and love. Our desires for ourselves must be wise and then can be made the measure of our duty; for even sinners love those that love them. And if ye do good deeds to others.

Vs. 32-34. "And if ye love them that love you, what thank have ye to them that do good to you, what thank have ye? for even sinners do the same. And if ye lend to them from whom you hope to receive, what thank have ye? for even sinners do the same." Christians must show by their lives how much better their religion is than worldliness. We are to be standing advertisements of Christianity.

V. 35. "But love your enemies, and do good to them and lend, never despairing; and your reward shall be great, and ye shall be sons of the most high; for he is kind toward unthankful and evil." Our great reward is to be the sons of God; and sons are like their father.

V. 36. "Be ye merciful, even as your father is merciful." God's mercy and nothing else is to be the measure and pattern of ours.

V. 37. "And judge not, and ye shall not be judged; and condemn not and ye shall not be condemned; release and ye shall be released." We are not forbidden to form opinions regarding others when that is necessary in order to carry on society; but they are not to be harsh and uncharitable opinions.

V. 38. "Give and it shall be given unto you; good measure, pressed down shaken together, running over, shall they give out of their bosom. For with what measure ye mete it shall be measured to you again." Everyone wants a liberal measure of blessing and forgiveness from God; this is the way to get it.

V. 39. "And he spake also a parable unto them, can the blind guide the blind? shall they not both fall into a pit?" Palestine is full of blind men who must be led around—but not by other blind men! Teachers and leaders must have good spiritual eyes.

V. 40. "And why beholdest thou the mote that is in thy brother's eye, but considerest not the beam that is in thine own eyes." One of the first necessities in helping another is first to understand one's own condition and needs.

V. 42. "Or how canst thou say to thy brother, Brother, let me cast out thy mote that is in thine eye, when thou beholdest not the beam that is in thine own eye? Thou hypocrite, cast out first the beam out of thine own eye, and then shalt thou see clearly to cast out the mote that is in thy brother's eye." If you have any fault, do not try reforming another of his faults until you have gotten rid of your own.

The Son of God did not come to stay on the level of humanity, but to lift humanity to his level.

What we need is not legislation but moral character.—Charles E. Hughes.

Wednesday evening 7:30 p. m prayer and praise meeting.

The most destructive criticism has not been able to dethrone Christ as the incarnation of perfect holiness. The waves of a tossing and restless sin of unbelief break at his feet and he stands still the supreme model, the inspiration of great souls, the rest of the weary, the fragrance of all Christendom, the one divine flower in the garden of God.

Does Circleville need a revival? Let the thoughtful answer. Sin is playing its role in the lives of individuals to such an extent that it should be checked by a mighty revival of religion. Where is such a revival to begin? It must begin with the church. How many are willing to pay the price in real heart-searching prayer until we see a mighty revival sweeping over our city? God help us all to pay.

The FIRST UNITED BRETHREN IN CHRIST.
E. Main-st.
W. F. Rutherford, Pastor.

The church has always been an important factor in the molding and shaping of human conduct. This month we celebrate the birth of two great Americans, Lincoln and Washington, each of them was a firm believer in the church of the Living God. While Lincoln was president he attended church regularly. In doing this he has made a great impression on the mind of the world. Philip Brooks places the value of Lincoln in these words, "May God make us worthy of the memory of Abraham Lincoln." At the services of our church we will try and point out the things that made Lincoln great.

Morning worship at 10 30 Subject, "What Made Lincoln Great?"

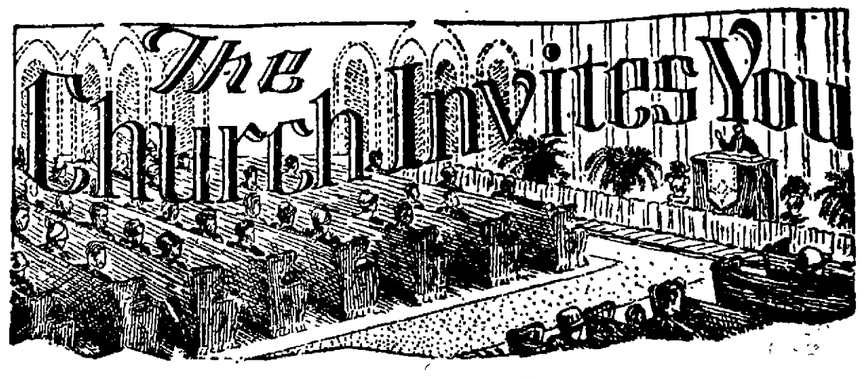
The Church Invites You



THE VALUE OF MEDITATION

A leading doctor has said, "Church-going is conducive to health." He proved his point by showing that periodical relaxation is absolutely essential in these days of living at a high pressure with a strain upon the nerves and blood vessels that is terrific.

The hush of the sanctuary, the meditative service of worship produces a quietness of mind and soul which soothes both body and spirit.

Why not accept the invitation and come to church next Sunday?

DR. CARL YODER.

Luke expresses the teachings of the Sermon on the Mount by practical examples of the teachings of Jesus. Jesus would saturate society with the spirit of love; this is a long process but progress is made when viewed by centuries.

Vs. 27, 28. "But I say unto you that hear, love your enemies, do good to them that hate you. Bless them that curse you, pray for them that despitefully use you." One may not have for his enemies the same affection that he has for his friends but one is to have the spirit of goodwill that seeks to do the best thing for them and to remove offenses and restore mutual faith and fellowship.

V. 29. "To him that smiteth thee on one cheek offer also the other; and from him that taketh away thy cloak, withhold not thy coat also." We ought to prefer bearing patiently with injustices only for moral reasons does a true disciple of Christ appeal to law.

V. 31. "And as ye would that men should do to you, do ye also to them likewise." Actions and conduct are to be determined by wisdom and love. Our desires for ourselves must be wise and then can be made the measure of our duty? for even sinners love those that love them. And if ye do good deeds to others.

Vs. 32-34. "And if ye love them that love you, what thank have ye to them that do good to you, what thank have ye? for even sinners do the same. And if ye lend to them from whom you hope to receive, what thank have ye? for even sinners do the same." Christians must show by their lives how much better their religion is than worldliness. We are to be standing advertisements of Christianity.

V. 35. "But love your enemies, and do good to them and lend, never despairing; and your reward shall be great, and ye shall be sons of the most high; for he is kind toward unthankful and evil." Our great reward is to be the sons of God; and sons are like their father.

V. 36. "Be ye merciful, even as your father is merciful." God's mercy and nothing else is to be the measure and pattern of ours.

V 37 "And judge not, and ye shall not be judged; and condemn not and ye shall not be condemned; release and ye shall be released." We are not forbidden to form opinions regarding others when that is necessary in order to carry on society; but they are not to be harsh and uncharitable opinions.

V. 38. "Give and it shall be given unto you; good measure, pressed down shaken together, running over, shall they give out of their bosom. For with what measure ye mete it shall be measured to you again." Everyone wants a liberal measure of blessing and forgiveness from God; this is the way to get it.

V. 39. "And he spake also a parable unto them, can the blind guide the blind? shall they not both fall into a pit?" Palestine is full of blind men who must be led around—but not by other blind men! Teachers and leaders must have good spiritual eyes.

V. 40. "And why beholdest thou the mote that is in thy brother's eye, but considerest not the beam that is in thine own eyes." One of the first necessities in helping another is first to understand one's own condition and needs

V 42. "Or how canst thou say to thy brother, Brother let me cast out thy mote that is in thine eye, when thou beholdest not the beam that is in thine own eye? Thou hypocrite, cast out first the beam out of thine own eye, and then shalt thou see clearly to cast out the mote that is in thy brother's eye." If you have any fault, do not try reforming another of his faults until you have gotten rid of your own.

The Son of God did not come to stay on the level of humanity, but to lift humanity to his level.

What we need is not legislation but moral character.—Charles E Hughes.

Tigers Lose Thriller To Bexley Lion Five

Hold Lead With Minute to Play

Holding a 29-26 lead until the last minute of play, when they allowed Leahy, a substitute and Lytle, of Bexley, guard to sink two goals from the middle of the floor, Coach Herberholz's high school Tigers lost a tough game at Bexley 30-29 Friday. The game was somewhat of a replica of the Bexley-Tiger game played here before Christmas, with exception that the locals out-played the Lions of Bexley. Leahy was sent in by Coach Carlton Smith when he was told there was one minute to go. Lytle first hit the hoop to make the score 29-28, followed by Leahy, who shot the margin making goal.

The game was a 'scrap' from start to finish, with the score changing about a dozen times. Circleville scored the first points of the game when Davis and Purcell each had a free throw. Bexley held for a while, but Stark came in and hit the hoop, followed soon by Ketner, who had a long shot, making the score 4-2. From then on, the score was ever-changing, and when the first quarter ended, Bexley had a two-point lead, the score 8-6.

LOCALS IN LEAD

The second quarter saw the locals break loose and began hitting the hoop from several angles. Purcell and Good each scoring freely for the locals, and Ketner and Lytle for Bexley, brought the score up to 15-14.

The second half was a battle, as a few noses were bleeding, etc., and each team was certainly fighting. Bexley shot a free throw at the beginning of this period and brought the score to 16-14, however the Tigers shot a goal and tied the score 16-16, following closely with another goal to obtain 18, while their opponents had another free throw, and the Tigers led by a one point margin, 18 to 17. Tigers hit the hoop again and had a free throw, and Bexley had a couple long shots, and a short one to tie the score at the end of the third quarter 23-23. This was one of the hardest fought sessions of the game, and many times the Red and Blacks would try for the hoop, and the ball would roll around the edges and fall out.

The fight went on in the last quarter, when Good hit the hoop to break the tie, followed by Ketner of Bexley, who did the same and again tied the score 25-25. McClure had a long shot and again broke the tie, and Bexley had a free throw, and the score was 27-26. Circleville held the lead with J. Hegele contributing another bucket, until the last minute, when Lytle and Leahy won the game.

Hagley and Katherman, both of Columbus, officiated.

Grantmen Play Great Third Period to Gain Big Margin; Score 44-32.

The locals started in the opening period to gain an edge on the Groveport team and at the quarter the score was 10-3. Groveport came from behind in the second period to put the score at the half, 14-13 still in favor of the Clouds. In the third period the Grant-men got hot and at the three-quarter pole held a lead of 31-17, when they increased to 44-32 at the end of the game.

Dutch Wefler, Joe Glitt and Jaggy Davis led the scoring for the Clouds, Wefler with 10, Glitt with 11, and Davis with nine.

Next Thursday the Groveport team will play a preliminary against the Clouds at C. A. C.

Tables Turned as Butler Faces Trial

When Brigadier-General Smedley Butler goes on trial in general courtmartial, before Rear Admiral David F. Sellers (left below), he will only be taking a new role in an old drama. At left above he is shown as witness in the famous trial of Col. Williams, whom he accused of drinking a cocktail when they both were serving at San Diego, Cal. He often was the accuser, also, when Safety Director in Philadelphia. At right, he is shown as he left City Hall when he was fired. Right below, he is shown at Tien-tsin, China, in 1927, where he won commendation for his work. His court-martial because of accusations against Benito Mussolini only marks a new episode in his stormy career as a member of the U. S. Marine Corps.

Charlie Chaplin Speaks In Defense of Talkies

NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—Charlie Chaplin, wordless comedian, for years recorded as an arch-foe to the talking motion pictures ,today spoke up for the "talkies.' '

"I am not opposed to the talking moving pictures as an invention and am planning perhaps to direct a screen drama with dialogue for my next production," Chaplain said in an interview. "However, I shall not appear in the picture."

Screenland's first pantomimist arrived here for the opening of his latest picture "City Lights", interpreted by critics as a defiance to the talkie industry. The picture has sound--music composed by Chaplin himself--but no dialogue. There is also a "gurgling" scene in which Chaplain admitted was a satire on the talkies.

"The talkies have a great deal of vitality--they have added something to the silent medium," he said. "Of course, they are here to stay--but I prefer to appear without dialogue.

"If I ever do a talkie it will not be as Charlie Chaplain.' '

"I simply feel that my picture is something to entertain and the public will come to see it even if there are no words to it," he said.

"Talkies are easier to make.

"I don't think there is the same beauty in talkies as in silent pictures.

"There are not any talkies yet which can compare with the great silent pictures."

His plan to direct a dialogue picture was based on a desire to experiment with a new artistic medium, he said.

Chaplain's arrival suggested an opening night. A crowd swirled madly outside as he stepped off the train. Photographers fought for good positions. Chaplain retired to his car and had breakfast. Faces of curiosity seekers were pressed against the window pane during the operation.

"He is a simple, honest man," he said. "We talked of pictures and music. I didn't say a word about science. Dr. Einstein is greatly interested in the talkies.' '

The comedian was asked if he intended to remarry. He and Lita Grey Chaplin were recently divorced.

"Unfortunately, there is nobody on the horizon," Chaplain smiled.

Chaplain said he spent two years and $1,500,000 in making "City Lights' 'which opens here Friday.

100 IN DANGER ON SOVIET SHIP

LONDON, Feb. 7.—One hundred passengers aboard the Soviet steamer Sergiec were in danger today when the steamer struck a rock near Sebastopol in the Black Sea, according to an exchange telegraph company dispatch from Riga. Latest reports said the ship was sinking.

Soviet warships are rushing to the assistance.

No steamer by the name Sergiec is listed in Lloyds register of shipping.

VILLAGE STUDIES REDUCED PRICES

SOUTH CHARLESTON, O., Feb 7.—Members of the South Charleston village commission were considering today the offer of the Dayton Power & Light Company for reduced rates for the street lighting system of the village.

The offer calls for a reduction from $48 to $36 a year for each of the boulevard lights and from $36 to $30 a year for each of the overhead lights. The street lighting system contract expires March 1.

PROPOSAL FOR CASH PAYMENT OF BONUS IS NOW REJECTED

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—Proposals for immediate full cash payment of veterans adjusted service compensation certificates totalling three and a half billion dollars have been definitely rejected by both Republican and Democratic leaders in Congress, it was learned today.

The decision, reached informally was declared a victory for leading bankers and financiers who have testified before the ways and means committee that issuance of bonds in this amount would prevent business recovery.

"No one wants to take the responsibility of preventing business recovery," said a leading Republican, confirming the understanding.

The suggestions of Chairman Owen D. Young of the General Electric company were believed to form the basis for a compromise between extreme proposals to aid the veterans.

The Young plan, which calls for advancement of $300,000,000 to $500,000,000 on the certificates to needy veterans, attracted wide attention. It could be accomplished, it was believed, without the sale of new bonds, as a part of the victory loan refinancing operations the treasury must carry on next year.

Other plans designed to aid needy veterans include cashing of certificates for 200,000 to 300,000 veterans out of work, estimated to total $200,000,000; and increase of loan value of the certificates.

The suggestion of Young, the many financiers and industrialists most liberal advanced by the many financiers and industrialists called before the committee, apparently made a deep impression. His attitude, together with that of President Rome C. Stephenson of the American Bankers Association, who also urged aid for needy veterans, brought from Rep. Crowther (R) of New York the statement:

"Mr. Young and Mr. Stephenson are the only two appearing before us who have shown a tinge of humanity."

With hearings before the ways and means committee expected to close today, backers of veterans aid will demand quick action.

Rep. Garner of Texas, Democratic member, after winning from Rep. Hawley (R) of Oregon, chairman, that Ogden Mills, under-secretary of the treasury, submitted the names of many witnesses, charged that financiers and industrialists were called for the sole purpose of killing the cash payment plan.

SECONDS LOSE TO BEXLEY 5

Score is 17-6 When Offense and Defense Both Fail to Function.

Circleville high school reserves dropped a lop-sided basket-ball fray to Bexley reserves in a preliminary to the Bexley-Tiger clash in the former gym Friday night. The score was 17 to 6. The subs were outclassed in size and experience, and had much trouble in hitting the hoop.

In the second quarter the Bexleyites increased their score to 9, while the locals were unable to gain another point. Several of the locals were tossing the ball around any way, and attempting to hit the hoop in a sloppy fashion, which did not work, and as a result at the end of the half were on the short end of the score, 9-2.

In the last session Radcliff and Rader each had a goal, which was the only score during the rest of the game, while Benjamin and Turner of Bexley were shooting in buckets from all angles, and contributed four more goals to their score to make the game end 17-6.

Local reserves did not play their regular game, as offensive was not working, and defense was bad.

TASK OF PERMITTING FUNDS FOR STARVING NEAR CLIMAX

WAHINGTON, Feb. 6 — The delicate task of phasing a sentence, premitting use of federal funds to buy food for starving Americans but without saying so in specific language, today stood in the way of a compromise between Pres. Hoover and the senate on drought relief.

There was a general agreenment the compromise would appropriate $15,000,000 more for drought relief and an indication it would be directed to the secetary of agriculture for administration. But a dozen leaders were working on language, which will be suitable not only to the president but to the militant heads of the Democratic-insurgent coalition in the senate.

It appeared the ultimate proposition would merely provide the money should be made available to be spent by the secretary of agriculture "if, when and as found necessary" to relief suffering in the drought areas. It was felt this language would meet the president's objections and also satisfy the coalition.

The president has told his spokesmen he will veto any bill, appropriating federal funds direct to the American Red Cross. hence, the name of that organization will not appear in the compromise. He has also said he will veto any language directly authorizing the purchase of food with federal funds. so, the word fod will be excluded from the authorization.

When asked about the compromise maneuvers, Sen. Caraway (D) of Arkanas, who initiated the demand for relief of humans in the drought area, said:

"No sincere person, interested in relieving distress among persons hungry and cold, will quibble about the method of relief."

Other senate pointed out that the 'if, as and when" plan would avoid every objection made thus far against a federal approriation.

As the presidental and coalition spokesmen grew more cheerful about a drought relief compromise, it was agreed only a permanent impasse over relief could provoke a special session.

St. Valentine's Day

MARRIED men,—this is for you. The single lads do not need to be told. Next Saturday is St. Valentine's Day.

As this is written there is the first tinge of spring in the air. A song sparrow, first harbinger of a welcome host, is making melody outside the window. The season of renewed life, of love and mating, is at hand.

Perhaps you recall another spring—a few years ago—when the blood bounded joyously through your veins and all the world was filled with melody because of HER. You needed nobody then to remind you of St. Valentine's day—or of any other occasion that offered reasonable opportunity to do HER homage.

Well, beneath the fading hair the eyes that looked so devotedly at you then, are still as devoted. Aye, more so. And the heart that once you aroused to ecstatic beatings is as fondly yours as it was then. Yea, what was then but yours in promise has long been yours in reality. And you owe her such an expression of understanding as will bring the flush back to the cheek and the fragrance of romance back to the soul of one to whom you are indebted for far more than you can ever pay.

Do you know when she is happiest? Why when she thinks that the charm you once saw in her still lives; that she is still young and fair to you. Make her feel, therefore, that

She is your Valentiine. Make her understand it.

Boy from Hick Town

THE socalled hick town has lately become a source of great inspiration to our professional humorists.

A hick town, say the various users of this convenient formula, is a place where a backfire is never mistaken for a pistol shot; where bedtime is orthodox; where woodpeckers eat up the depot; where central can tell you whether it was a girl or boy; where the neighbors will supply you with a conscience if you lack one; where there is no parking problem; where a curfew disturbs the resident's rest; where fine cut tobacco is no handicap socially, and so on and on.

With no intention of becoming terribly heavy over the matter, we want to add that a hick town is a place where 26 of our 29 presidents were born and where seven out of 10 of the immortals in New York's national hall of fame originated. A hick town that didn't have a name produced Lincoln. Hick towns gave us most of our great literary figures of the past and practically all of those now living. Hick towns produce our Edisons.

If we may, then we would like to suggest that a hick town is a place where a boy has an excellent opportunity to lay the foundation of future greatness.

Advertising Aids All

NEWSPAPER advertising and the automobile have combined to bring the city shops to the very door of the farm house and the suburban home. Each week the newspapers bring a complete quotation of what can be bought, where it can be purchased and the prices asked. The sale is actually made through the advertising columns of the newspaper. A visit to the store next day by automobile completes the exchange of money for merchandise.

How much more convenient is this contrivance of modern commercial and industrial genius to the inefficient method of our forebears who knew only their personal needs. With them there was no alternative for the slow, tedious and disappointing expedient of going to town by wagon or cart and trusting to diligence and a stout pair of shoes to seek out the shop which sold that which they were in need of and which sold it at an acceptable price, if not at the lowest obtainable price.

Four means of eliminating prejudice are: An appreciation of the truth, in another's position; a consciousness of one's own weakness; the discovery of common interests and self-discipline to stop generalizations based on merely personal experiences. Niebuhr.

"FOREST LOVE" by HAZEL LIVINGSTON

Nancy Hollenbeck is the young and beautiful daughter of a poor but socially accepted family. She is warned by her mother against marrying poverty. Nancy, becoming cynical, gives up handsome Mat Tully and begins an affair with Jack Beamer, married to wealth. Jack plans to divorce his wife and marry Nancy. On a trip to Yellowstone, Nancy meets Roger Decatur, a ranger. The Porters, rich but dull relatives, arrive. Nancy plans to use them as chaperones on a mountain trip to meet Roger. He appears the first night. The Porters are not pleased. Nancy and Roger take long rides over the mountain trails. They fall in love, but Nancy tells Roger she will only marry for wealth. She prepares to leave the mountain camp.

CHAPTER XVI.

THE butler idea helped. This time next year she wouldn't be salvaging old clothes. she would leave them for the maid with a nice little apology about the mud: "This little dress is a sight . . . still it was awfully expensive, and it will be sweet when it is freshened again . . . I wonder if you'd care to bother? It should just fit you—" Nancy had long since decided not to be patronizing with servants, like Mama and Mrs. Craig, nor snippy like Aunt Ellie. She would be chummy, like Gil Neal's mother, who was so important socially that she could afford to ask about the waiter's wife and cuddle the washlady's baby. . . .

She even whistled, almost contentedly, while she got into her traveling dress, biscuit-colored crepe de Chine that wouldn't show the dust, and pulled the wide brown straw hat over her russet waves. But her knees felt weak again when she thought of trying to explain to Roger. Roger wouldn't understand. . . .

She found him by the deserted corral, his long, graceful body propped against a fence post, blond, uncovered head shining in the sun. The last mule train was just disappearing around the bend.

He was unashamedly relieved to see her. "I didn't know what to think when you didn't show up. I was afraid you were mad—"

Nothing Matters

His bright blue eyes rested on her with love and longing. "Now that you're here," they said, 'nothing matters—not even missing our ride."

Nancy squirmed. It was going to be even harder than she had thought. "Oh, no . . . why should I be angry?" she murmured, avoiding his eyes.

"But no ride today? You're all dressed up! Well, I tell you what, I'll get my car and we'll have a picnic. Maybe I'll do a little fishing—"

"I couldn't Roger, not today. I wouldn't have time. I just have a few minutes. . . . This is good-bye." She tried to say it lightly. "I've ditched the damned Porters too much, so they're ditching me. I'm going back to Yosemite on the morning stage."

"You—WHAT?"

"I'm going back to Aunt Ellie at the Awahnee. What else CAN I do? The Porters won't take me on with them—I angled for an invitation hard enough. Oh, Roger, isn't it BEASTLY? When we were having such a perfect time—Swear for me, won't you?"

He said slowly, "You wouldn't go back now if you cared for me as I do for you. You know I can't —my job—"

"I can't help it."

"You promised—"

"No I didn't—not really. I meant I'd go on with the Porters because they were going, but don't you see that I can't now? It's because I spent every minute here with you that I'm not wanted to go on. Good heavens, didn't I move heaven and earth to even get to Tuolumne Meadows in the first place? I can't keep up this mad tearing all over after you. You'll have to get another girl—"

Still he leaned against the fence, pulling at a piece of leather in his hand. His arrogant shoulders were drooping. The light had gone out of his bright blue eyes.

Quite suddenly Nancy knew she couldn't bear the thought of another girl for him. "Help me, help me!" she prayed to the God she bothered so seldom. "Help me now — keep me from crying all over him!"

Just Two Hours

She beat her hands together weakly. "Couldn't we — couldn't we go somewhere — and talk?"

He looked at her lizard skin pumps. "Spoil your shoes."

"Well, then — in your car. I have more than two hours, and I'm all packed — can't we have those last two hours, Roger?"

"If you like."

Methodically he pulled the canvas that served for garage off his battered roadster. Fished a large, not overclean rag out of the back and dusted the seat. "Not any too de luxe, Nancy. Sure you won't spoil your dress?"

"It doesn't matter."

She climbed in, and he started the motor. Expertly he backed the little car out of its parking place between two trees, turned into the road, drove fast as chuck-holes would permit, past swampy meadows yellow with cream cups, over small streams, around fallen timber.

"This isn't a very good road, but it's kind of pretty." His one contribution to conversation.

The family would have known that something was happening to Nancy. Something new and strange, and a little frightening. Her velvety brown eyes, sweet and shallow, had turned dark and faintly startled. Here in the mountains, with the wind whipping her soft hair into tumbled ringlets, and without her accustomed careful make-up, she was younger, more appealing. Her pose was shattered. She wasn't sure of herself any more.

"I shouldn't have come," she was thinking. "It will only make it harder. . . . I shouldn't even have said good-bye. . . . I have the rottenest luck, always liking the wrong people. . . . This is worse than any of them . . . a ranger. . . . If I didn't feel so terrible I could laugh . . . losing my head over a ranger, and Jack Beamer counting the minutes until I get back . . .; it's so hard . . . I'm such a fool . . ."

He stopped the car in a sandy gully that sloped down to the river.

"Do you want to get out?"

She looked down at the lizard skin pumps. Her last decent shoes. How the family would gasp over all the ruined clothes. "Yes—let's." Why think of shoes when you're tasting your last hour of madness, going back in a few short moments to sanity, and a common sense marriage?

Gallantly she stepped into the soft sand, climbed over a boulder, slid down a rock path.

"Wait—I'll help you!"

So, independent to the last, she increased her pace, slithered over some long, lush grass and sat with more emphasis than she had intended on a grassy shelf, just out of the spray from a miniature Vernal Falls.

"See, there are violets here—little teeny tiny white ones, in the grass!" she cried, just to be saying something.

He looked at her, long and intently, so that her colorrose, and she looked away, pretending to watch the falls.

"Help me! Help me!" she formed the words silently, moving her lips, but even as she prayed she knew she was beyond help. Roger Decatur's arms were closing around her. His mouth was on hers.

"I do love you!" she whispered "I do—I do!" And clung to him, sobbing as she hadn't cried since she was a child. Nancy, who had long since decided love was just one of Mother Nature's tricks, and nothing was worth crying over, anyway.

For years to come the faint woody smell of fresh violets was to fill her with exquisite torture . . . longing . . . regret . . .

The car was all ready, plenty of oil and gas, tires tested, luggage neatly packed. Essie and Gladys were sitting in the back seat, mannish straw hats straight on their heads, feet firmly planted, waiting. Mrs. Porter was also waiting.

For the second time in ten minutes Mr. Porter lifted the hood and looked at the engine. He seemed loath to start. "Well, I guess it's all right. We can go now," he said.

"All right! Of course it's all right!" his wife snapped. She glared at him, suspicion in her china blue eyes. "I told you that before you looked. Why shouldn't it be all right, a fine engine like like that? And if you're holding up our whole trip for that Nancy Hollenbeck, you got a long wait, Herman, and the girls and I will go inside again. You needn't think she'll come to say good-bye. Not that one. We ain't society enough for her. But a tough hostler—"

"Ranger, mamma," Gladys corrected.

"Anyhow, a common ranger is good enough. Such ideas. I was opposed from the first. Why can't you girls be company for each other? Always wanting others, and what for? Whenever it's strangers, it's just the same. Didn't the neighbor kids break that pink tea set Uncle Ben brought from New York last Winter? Real genuine Haviland china it was, and that bottle of German cologne the same way—smashed, the first thing—"

"Mama, dear, that was years ago—"

"Always the same. Always getting imposed on, this family. I hope this teaches you a lesson. When I see Mrs. Watson again I'll have something to say—"

"Mama, please—"

Fiery Departure

"Mama, you don't care how you hurt us!" Essie was close to tears.

"I don't care, it is a shame the way that girl treated you. Like dirt. I am going to speak my mind to Mrs. Watson. Yes, I am, I mean it. My conscience wouldn't let me do any different. If it was one of my girls I'd expect her to do it to me!" Mrs. Porter's flowery toque wobbled on the back of her head, two bright spots burned in her cheeks.

"So, so," Mr. Porter murmured. with a last lingering look toward the canvas cabins from which he had been momentarily expecting Nancy to emerge. But she was not in sight, so he stepped on the starter and blew a long, melodious farewell on the horn, effectively drowning out further conversation

The Porters, rid of their unappreciative guest, were on their way.

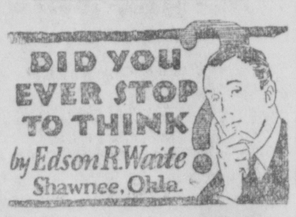
* * *

"Love at first sight," Roger was murmuring, and the way his voice broke on the words made Nancy's eyes brim afresh and the pounding start again in her heart. "I thought it was a joke—I didn't know it ever happened, but, my dear, it does—it does—"

She lifted her head from his shoulder and began to rub a dingy powder puff rather futilely over her pink nose. "I know—it's t-terrible. But we'll get over it.

"Get over it?" he echoed, laughing, but she did not laugh. She was crying again, helplessly. His two hands gripped her shoulders roughly. "Look here, girl, what are you saying? Who's going to get over it?"

"B-both of us," said Nancy, and laid her wet face against his coat sleeve again.



THAT business concerns who want worth while business must keep after it. Those who think they can sit and wait for it will have a good, long wait.

The amount of business any concern can secure will be in proportion to the extent of their vision and effort.

If their business is not growing as they would like to have it, they will have to broaden their vision and put forth a little more effort.

The greatest business getter is continuous advertising. No business concern ever made any marked success without its aid.

Increased competition has made it necessary to pay more attention to advertising.

Business concerns that advertise are in the lime light stronger than ever and are the only ones who show increased sales.

The shortest distance between seller and buyer is through the printed page.

THROUGH LEAN YEARS AS WELL AS THROUGH THE YEARS OF GREAT PROSPERITY, THE BUSINESS CONCERNS WHO HAVE BEEN CONTINUOUS ADVERTISERS HAVE ALWAYS BEEN LEADERS.

ADVERTISING OPENS THE DOOR TO INCREASED PROSPERITY FOR EVERY BUSINESS.

CRAWFORD-CO FIGHTS CRIME

BUCYRUS, O., Feb. 7.—"Every robber who carries a gun is a potential murderer," Prosecutor J. D. Sears, of Cawford-co, declared today as he joined with Common Pleas Judge J. Walter Wright in a concerted campaign against banditry in this section.

Judge Wright, in sentencing two youths who pleaded guilty to robbing a filling station here, issued a drastic warning to all bandits who use guns in holdups that they need not expect leniency from the court.

Terms of from one to 15 years each in the state reformatory at Mansfield were meted out to Harold Chambers, 21, and Leland Dixon, 20, both of Delaware.

Theatres

AT THE GRAND

Sam Hardy, who is one of the leading fun-makers in "Borrowed Wives," the farce comedy-drama current at the Grand Theater, is fond of sports, the theatre and a few other things, but he admits just one predominant hobby.

That is the Masquers of Hollywood. He has been president of this unique organization, comparable to the Lambs Club of New York City, for two y ears, and it is his main concern outside of his work. Members include all the most famous stars, writers, directors and other artists.

AT THE CLIFTONA

Those who have been clamoring for more of Ruth Chatterton, and they are legion in view of her outstanding performances for the talking screen, get a multiple serving of perfect drama in "The Right to Love," new Paramount talking picture, which opens Sunday at the Cliftona Theater.

Miss Chatterton does a dual role, providing her with three or four distinct characterizations, in this story of romantic repression thru two generations, and the tragic events born of a secret tryst.

Richard Wallace directed from the Susan Glaspell book. "Brook Evans." The screen play is by Zoe Akins. Paul Lukas and David Manners head the cast in support.

AUSTRALIA TOWNS ARE FLOOD SWEPT

SYDNEY, Australia, Feb. 7.—Cloudbursts, floods and landslides today had caused extensive damage and much suffering in Queensland and New South Wales. It is feared that several persons have been drowned.

Thousands are homeless, all they possessed in the world having been washed away by floods or carried away by resultant landslides.

Brisbane, where 16 inches of rain have fallen during the past 24 hours, is virtually isolated. Suburbs of that city resemble lakes.

The water level of many streams in the district is from 40 to 60 feet above normal. Hundreds of acres of land are covered with 20 feet of water.

Government agencies are supplying food to the homeless and destitute.

KEEPING UP THE SPEED

Health Value of Foods High in Iodine Content

Deficiency May Cause Thyroid Disturbances

Dr. Copeland, Discussing the Different Types of Goitre, Points Out the Necessity of Including Iodine-Foods and Water in the Daily Diet.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.,
United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

IT is quite common to meet a woman who has a large swelling in the neck. This is due to a condition spoken of as "Goitre."

DR COPELAND

In front of the neck, just beneath the skin, is a gland called the "Thyroid Gland." When this gland is normal in size it is not noticeable nor can it be felt. When enlarged it may assume huge proportions, becoming very conspicuous, particularly upon swallowing.

The thyroid gland absorbs the iodine contained in the blood, iodine is converted by the thyroid gland into other substances, particularly a substance called "Thyroidin." This is an important process, essential for the normal operation of the body.

Disturbances of this gland result in various diseases. If the gland is over-active there may result an ailment known as "Exopthalmic Goitre." If it is under-active we may have undernourishment and even undermining of the constitution.

The most common disturbance of this gland is known as "Simple Goitre." This condition is due to a deficiency of iodine in the water or food. The gland increases in size and if not checked in its growth, there may result serious nervous disorders.

This condition is particularly common in the so-called "goitre districts." In these regions the iodine contents of the water is low. As soon as the deficiency is corrected, which is usually done by the feeding of iodine in some form, the enlargement of the gland rapidly disappears. In the goitre districts schoolchildren are fed iodine tablets. In some cities iodine is actually added to the municipal water supply.

It is known that certain foods, notably salmon, carry iodine. The vegetables raised in South Carolina are found to be high in iodine content. You should talk with your doctor about the feeding of your children, particularly if they show any signs of goitre.

Besides those I have mentioned, there are other forms of thyroid disturbances. All of them require careful medical care and sometimes, in advanced cases, are only cured by operations.

Great strides in the study of thyroid diseases have been made during the past decade. This is particularly true in the field of thyroid surgery. Much suffering and physical disability have been eliminated by means of this progress.

St. Valentine's Day

MARRIED men,—this is for you. The single lads do not need to be told. Next Saturday is St. Valentine's Day.

As this is written there is the first tinge of spring in the air. A song sparrow, first harbinger of a welcome host, is making melody outside the window. The season of renewed life, of love and mating, is at hand.

Perhaps you recall another spring—a few years ago—when the blood bounded joyously through your veins and all the world was filled with melody because of HER. You needed nobody then to remind you of St. Valentine's day—or of any other occasion that offered reasonable opportunity to do HER homage.

Well, beneath the fading hair the eyes that looked so devotedly at you then, are still as devoted. Aye, more so. And the heart that once you aroused to ecstatic beatings is as fondly yours as it was then. Yea, what was then but yours in promise has long been yours in reality. And you owe her such an expression of understanding as will bring the flush back to the cheek and the fragrance of romance back to the soul of one to whom you are indebted for far more than you can ever pay.

Do you know when she is happiest? Why when she thinks that the charm you once saw in her still lives; that she is still young and fair to you. Make her feel, therefore, that

She is your Valentiine. Make her understand it.

Boy from Hick Town

THE so-called hick town has lately become a source of great inspiration to our professional humorists.

A hick town, say the various users of this convenient formula, is a place where a backfire is never mistaken for a pistol shot; where bedtime is orthodox; where woodpeckers eat up the depot; where central can tell you whether it was a girl or boy; where the neighbors will supply you with a conscience if you lack one; where there is no parking problem; where a curfew disturbs the resident's rest; where fine cut tobacco is no handicap socially, and so on and on.

With no intention of becoming terribly heavy over the matter, we want to add that a hick town is a place where 26 of our 29 presidents were born and where seven out of 10 of the immortals in New York's national hall of fame originated. A hick town that didn't have a name produced Lincoln. Hick towns gave us most of our great literary figures of the past and practically all of those now living. Hick towns produce our Edisons.

If we may, then we would like to suggest that a hick town is a place where a boy has an excellent opportunity to lay the foundation of future greatness.

Advertising Aids All

NEWSPAPER advertising and the automobile have combined to bring the city shops to the very door of the farm house and the suburban home. Each week the newspapers bring a complete quotation of what can be bought, where it can be purchased and the prices asked. The sale is actually made through the advertising columns of the newspaper. A visit to the store next day by automobile completes the exchange of money for merchandise.

How much more convenient is this contrivance of modern commercial and industrial genius to the inefficient method of our forebears who knew only their personal needs. With them, there was no alternative for the slow, tedious and disappointing expedient of going to town by wagon or cart and trusting to diligence and a stout pair of shoes to seek out the shop which sold that which they were in need of and which sold it at an acceptable price if not at the lowest obtainable price.

Four means of eliminating prejudice are: An appreciation of the truth, in another's position; a consciousness of one's own weakness; the discovery of common interests and self-discipline to stop generalizations based on merely personal experiences.—Niebuhr.

"FOREST LOVE" by HAZEL LIVINGSTON

Nancy Hollenbeck is the young and beautiful daughter of a poor but socially accepted family. She is warned by her mother against marrying poverty. Nancy, becoming cynical, gives up handsome Mat Tully and begins an affair with Jack Beamer, married to wealth. Jack plans to divorce his wife and marry Nancy. On a trip to Yellowstone, Nancy meets Roger Decatur, a ranger. The Porters, rich but dull relatives, arrive. Nancy plans to use them as chaperones on a mountain trip to meet Roger. He appears the first night. The Porters are not pleased. Nancy and Roger take long rides over the mountain trails. They fall in love, but Nancy tells Roger she will only marry for wealth. She prepares to leave the mountain camp.

CHAPTER XVI.

THE butler idea helped. This time next year she wouldn't be salvaging old clothes. she would leave them for the maid with a nice little apology about the mud: "This little dress is a sight . . . still it was awfully expensive, and it will be sweet when it is freshened again. . . I wonder if you'd care to bother? It should just fit you—" Nancy had long since decided not to be patronizing with servants, like Mama and Mrs. Craig, nor snippy like Aunt Ellie. She would be chummy, like Gil Neal's mother, who was so important socially that she could afford to ask about the waiter's wife and cuddle the washlady's baby. . . .

She even whistled, almost contentedly, while she got into her traveling dress, biscuit-colored crepe de Chine that wouldn't show the dust, and pulled the wide brown straw hat over her russet waves. But her knees felt weak again when she thought of trying to explain to Roger. Roger wouldn't understand. . . .

She found him by the deserted corral, his long, graceful body propped against a fence post, blond, uncovered head shining in the sun. The last mule train was just disappearing around the bend.

He was unashamedly relieved to see her. "I didn't know what to think when you didn't show up. I was afraid you were mad—"

Nothing Matters

His bright blue eyes rested on her with love and longing. "Now that you're here," they said, 'nothing matters—not even missing our ride."

Nancy squirmed. It was going to be even harder than she had thought. "Oh, no . . . why should I be angry?" she murmured, avoiding his eyes.

"But no ride today? You're all dressed up! Well, I tell you what, I'll get my car and we'll have a picnic. Maybe I'll do a little fishing—"

"I couldn't Roger, not today. I wouldn't have time. I just have a few minutes. . . . This is good-bye." She tried to say it lightly. "I've ditched the damned Porters too much, so they're ditching me. I'm going back to Yosemite on the morning stage."

"You—WHAT?"

"I'm going back to Aunt Ellie at the Awahnee. What else CAN I do? The Porters won't take me on with them—I angled for an invitation hard enough. Oh, Roger, isn't it BEASTLY? When we were having such a perfect time—Swear for me, won't you?"

He said slowly, "You wouldn't go back now if you cared for me as I do for you. You know I can't—my job—"

"I can't help it."

"You promised—"

"No I didn't—not really. I meant I'd go on with the Porters because they were going, but don't you see that I can't now? It's because I spent every minute here with you that I'm not wanted to go on. Good heavens, didn't I move heaven and earth to even get to Tuolumne Meadows in the first place? I can't keep up this mad tearing all over after you. You'll have to get another girl—"

Still he leaned against the fence, pulling at a piece of leather in his hand. His arrogant shoulders were drooping. The light had gone out of his bright blue eyes.

Quite suddenly Nancy knew she couldn't bear the thought of another girl for him. "Help me, help me!" she prayed to the God she bothered so seldom. "Help me now — keep me from crying all over him!"

Just Two Hours

She beat her hands together weakly. "Couldn't we — couldn't we go somewhere — and talk?"

He looked at her lizard skin pumps. "Spoil your shoes."

"Well, then — in your car. I have more than two hours, and I'm all packed — can't we have those last two hours, Roger?"

"If you like."

Methodically he pulled the canvas that served for garage off his battered roadster. Fished a large, not overclean rag out of the back and dusted the seat. "Not any too de luxe, Nancy. Sure you won't spoil your dress?"

"It doesn't matter."

She climbed in, and he started the motor. Expertly he backed the little car out of its parking place between two trees, turned into the road, drove fast as chuck-holes would permit, past swampy meadows yellow with cream cups, over small streams, around fallen timber.

"This isn't a very good road, but it's kind of pretty." His one contribution to conversation.

The family would have known that something was happening to Nancy. Something new and strange, and a little frightening. Her velvety brown eyes, sweet and shallow, had turned dark and faintly startled. Here in the mountains, with the wind whipping her soft hair into tumbled ringlets, and without her accustomed careful make-up, she was younger, more appealing. Her pose was shattered. She wasn't sure of herself any more.

"I shouldn't have come," she was thinking. "It will only make it harder. . . . I shouldn't even have said good-bye. . . . I have the rottenest luck, always liking the wrong people. . . . This is worse than any of them . . . a ranger. . . . If I didn't feel so terrible I could laugh . . losing my head over a ranger, and Jack Beamer counting the minutes until I get back . . . it's so hard . . . I'm such a fool . . ."

He stopped the car in a sandy gully that sloped down to the river.

"Do you want to get out?"

She looked down at the lizard skin pumps. Her last decent shoes. How the family would gasp over all the ruined clothes. "Yes—let's." Why think of shoes when you're tasting your last hour of madness, going back in a few short moments to sanity, and a common sense marriage?

Gallantly she stepped into the soft sand, climbed over a boulder, slid down a rock path.

"Wait—I'll help you!"

So, independent to the last, she increased her pace, slithered over some long, lush grass and sat with more emphasis than she had intended on a grassy shelf, just out of the spray from a miniature Vernal Falls.

Gravely he dropped down beside her, his brown, slender hand covering one of hers.

"See, there are violets here—little teeny tiny white ones, in the grass!" she cried, just to be saying something.

He looked at her, long and intently, so that her colorrose, and she looked away, pretending to watch the falls.

"Help me! Help me!" she formed the words silently, moving her lips, but even as she prayed she knew she was beyond help. Roger Decatur's arms were closing around her. His mouth was on hers.

"I do love you!" she whispered "I do—I do!" And clung to him, sobbing as she hadn't cried since she was a child. Nancy, who had long since decided love was just one of Mother Nature's tricks, and nothing was worth crying over, anyway.

For years to come the faint woody smell of fresh violets was to fill her with exquisite torture . . . longing . . . regret . . .

The car was all ready, plenty of oil and gas, tires tested, luggage neatly packed. Essie and Gladys were sitting in the back seat, manni-le straw hats straight on their heads, feet firmly planted, waiting. Mrs. Porter was also waiting.

For the second time in ten minutes Mr. Porter lifted the hood and looked at the engine. He seemed loath to start. "Well, I guess it's all right. We can go now," he said.

"All right! Of course it's all right!" his wife snapped. She glared at him, suspicion in her china blue eyes. "I told you that before you looked. Why shouldn't it be all right, a fine engine like like that? And if you're holding up our whole trip for that Nancy Hollenbeck, you got a long wait, Herman, and the girls and I will go inside again. You needn't think she'll come to say good-bye. Not that one. We ain't society enough for her. But a tough hostler—"

"Ranger, mamma," Gladys corrected.

"Anyhow, a common ranger is good enough. Such ideas. I was opposed from the first. Why can't you girls be company for each other? Always wanting others, and what for? Whenever it's strangers, it's just the same. Didn't the neighbor kids break that pink tea set Uncle Ben brought from New York last Winter? Real genuine Haviland china it was, and that bottle of German cologne the same way—smashed, the first thing—"

"Mama, dear, that was years ago—"

"Always the same. Always getting imposed on, this family. I hope this teaches you a lesson. When I see Mrs. Watson again I'll have something to say—"

"Mama, please—"

Fiery Departure

"Mama, you don't care how you hurt us!" Essie was close to tears.

"I don't care, it is a shame the way that girl treated you. Like dirt I am going to speak my mind to Mrs Watson. Yes, I am. I mean it. My conscience wouldn't let me do any different. If it was one of my girls I'd expect her to do it to me!" Mrs. Porter's flowery toque wobbled on the back of her head, two bright spots burned in her cheeks.

"So, so," Mr. Porter murmured, with a last lingering look toward the canvas cabins from which he had been momentarily expecting Nancy to emerge. But she was not in sight, so he stepped on the starter and blew a long, melodious farewell on the horn, effectively drowning out further conversation.

The Porters, rid of their unappreciative guest, were on their way.

* * *

"Love at first sight," Roger was murmuring, and the way his voice broke on the words made Nancy's eyes brim afresh and the pounding start again in her heart. "I thought it was a joke—I didn't know it ever happened, but, my dear, it does—it does—"

She lifted her head from his shoulder and began to rub a dingy powder puff rather futilely over her pink nose. "I know—it's t-terrible. But we'll get over it."

"Get over it?" he echoed, laughing, but she did not laugh. She was crying again, helplessly. His two hands gripped her shoulders roughly. "Look here, girl, what are you saying? Who's going to get over it?"

"B-both of us," said Nancy, and laid her wet face against his coat sleeve again.

THAT business concerns who want worth while business must keep after it. Those who think they can sit and wait for it will have a good, long wait.

The amount of business any concern can secure will be in proportion to the extent of their vision and effort.

If their business is not growing as they would like to have it, they will have to broaden their vision and put forth a little more effort.

The greatest business getter is optimums advertising. No business concern ever made any marked success without it, and increased competition has made it necessary to put more attention to advertising.

Business concerns that advertise are in the race right stronger than ever and are the only ones who show increased sales.

Theatres

AT THE GRAND

Sam Hardy, who is one of the leading fun-makers in "Borrowed Wives," the farce comedy-drama current at the Grand Theater, is fond of sports, the theatre and a few other things, but he admits just one predominant hobby.

That is the Masquers of Hollywood. He has been president of this unique organization, comparable to the Lambs Club of New York City, for two years, and it is his main concern outside of his work. Members include all the most famous stars, writers, directors and other artists.

AT THE CLIFTONA

Those who have been clamoring for more of Ruth Chatterton, and they are legion in view of her outstanding performances for the talking screen, get a multiple serving of perfect drama in "The Right to Love," new Paramount talking picture, which opens Sunday at the Cliftona Theater.

Miss Chatterton does a dual role, providing her with three or four distinct characterizations, in this story of romantic repression thru two generations, and the tragic events born of a secret tryst.

Richard Wallace directed from the Susan Glaspell book. "Brook Evans." The screen play is by Zoe Akins. Paul Lukas and David Manners head the cast in support.

AUSTRALIA TOWNS ARE FLOOD SWEPT

SYDNEY, Australia, Feb. 7.—Cloudbursts, floods and landslides today had caused extensive damage and much suffering in Queensland and New South Wales. It is feared that several persons have been drowned.

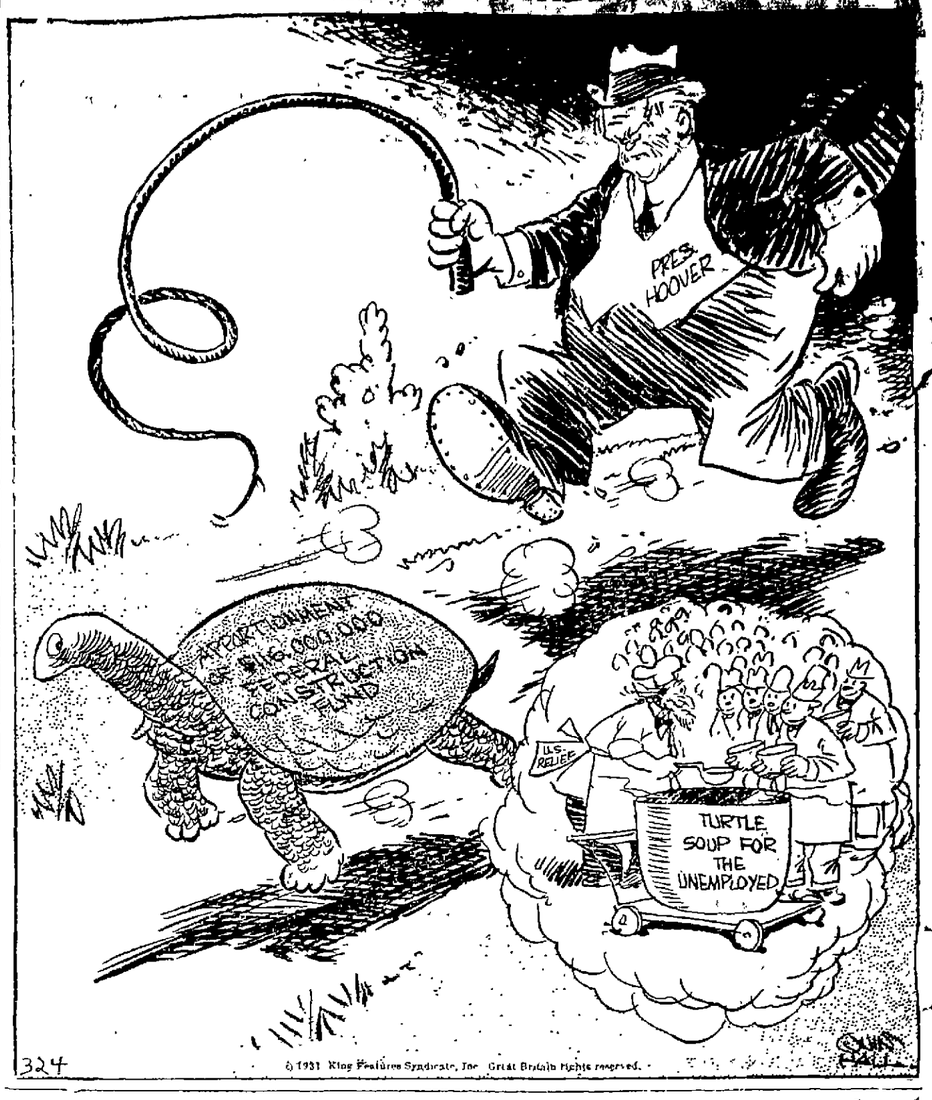
Thousands are homeless, all they possessed in the world having been washed away by floods or carried away by resultant landslides.

Brisbane, where 16 inches of rain have fallen during the past 24 hours is virtually isolated. Suburbs of that city resemble lakes.

The water level of many streams in the district is from 40 to 60 feet above normal. Hundreds of acres of land are covered with 20 feet of water.

Government agencies are supplying food to the homeless and destitute.

KEEPING UP THE SPEED



Health Value of Foods High in Iodine Content

Deficiency May Cause Thyroid Disturbances

Dr. Copeland, Discussing the Different Types of Goitre, Points Out the Necessity of Including Iodine-Foods and Water in the Daily Diet.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.,
United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

IT is quite common to meet a woman who has a large swelling in the neck. This is due to a condition spoken of as "Goitre."

DR COPELAND

In front of the neck, just beneath the skin, is a gland called the "Thyroid Gland." When this gland is normal in size it is not noticeable nor can it be felt. When enlarged it may assume huge proportions, becoming very conspicuous, particularly upon swallowing.

The thyroid gland absorbs the iodine contained in the blood, iodine is converted by the thyroid gland into other substances, particularly a substance called "Thyroidin." This is an important process, essential for the normal operation of the body.

Disturbances of this gland result in various diseases. If the gland is over-active there may result an ailment known as "Exopthalmic Goitre." If it is under-active we may have undernourishment and even undermining of the constitution.

The most common disturbance of this gland is known as "Simple Goitre." This condition is due to a deficiency of iodine in the water or food. The gland increases in size and if not checked in its growth, there may result serious nervous disorders.

This condition is particularly common in the so-called "goitre districts." In these regions the iodine contents of the water is low. As soon as the deficiency is corrected, which is usually done by the feeding of iodine in some form, the enlargement of the gland rapidly disappears. In the goitre districts schoolchildren are fed iodine tablets. In some cities iodine is actually added to the municipal water supply.

It is known that certain foods, notably salmon, carry iodine. The vegetables raised in South Carolina are found to be high in iodine content. You should talk with your doctor about the feeding of your children, particularly if they show any signs of goitre.

Besides those I have mentioned, there are other forms of thyroid disturbances. All of them require careful medical care and sometimes, in advanced cases, are only cured by operations.

Great strides in the study of thyroid diseases have been made during the past decade. This is particularly true in the field of thyroid surgery. Much suffering and physical disability have been eliminated by means of this progress.

Answers to Health Queries

Lulu C. B. Q.—What is the cause of ice cream tasting like copper? Green beans and chicken gravy taste like copper, to.

A.—You probably have some intestinal disturbance, and it would be wise to correct your diet and avoid constipation.

* * *

VERY MUCH WORRIED. Q.—How long will it take to definitely clear up "common itch"? I still have the rash and itching and have had the trouble about nine months?

A.—With proper treatment and general care the trouble should be definitely cleared up within a reasonably short space of time. For full particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

Epsilon Mu Sigma Stages Chapel; Class Room Work Is Burlesqued

Members of the Epsilon Mu Sigma held the mirror up to the teachers when they entertained the student body in chapel, Monday morning, with a burlesque of school life imitating the teachers and students of various classes The program, in charge of Miss Luise Kuhlman, earned a tremendous applause.

The first act is in Supt. J. O. Eagleson's (Doris Peters) office. The old alumna, Susia Snoop (Gertrude Lanman) returns to school and is escorted by Mr. Eagleson to the various classes including Fred Watts'.

Second act opens in chapel where, as always, Miss Helen Wittich (Cleo Brown) removes her jacket, moves the piano, and announces the usual songs 'Star Spangled Banner' and 'Number 5' During the introduction it is necessary to stop to tell the students they are not supposed to talk between songs

After the singing Principal E. I. Gephart. (Charles Plum) informs the students that 'he knows a secret' and then announces the game between the Circleville Tigers and the Kinnikinnick Lambs A cheer is then given, led by the cheerleader, Bob Rooney, first verse of 'The Red and Black' is sung and pupils go 'joyfully' to their first period classes.

Miss Elma Rains' (Rosemary Jackson) Latin class is portrayed in the third act. Franklin Crites (Bob Rooney finds it impossible to translate his lesson, so Sara May is called on. Katherine Foresman (Cleo Brown) after several badly mixed up attempts due to excitement, finally gives the principal parts of possum. Paul Rooney (Charles Plum) gives the principal parts of Cicero and Ned Grimer (Doris Peters) follows suit with pizzno

The fourth act is in Fred Watts' (Grace Steele) chemistry class It is found that no one has a complete lesson except Dorothy Clarke (Gene Rader) who left it at home Charles Brown (Charles Plum) suddenly turns poetic and recites a poem and then, to have something to do, Mr Watts leads the class in singing 'Keep Your Sunny Side Up.'

In the fifth act Miss Velma Watson (Avanell Haecker) is conducting her senior English class. Of course the first thing she does is to rummage through her purse to rescue a handkerchief Then she sends Lucille Kirkwood (Rosemary Jackson) after an excuse because she was cutting stencils and was late for class Mildred Ritt (Sally May) declares she can't get her lessons because basketball requires that she retire early Mid is also told to deposit her gum in the waste basket

When Bob Rooney puts the window up Sheldon Mader has to move so he won't be in the draft Miss Watson becomes very indignant when the marbles begin rolling because she thinks seniors are old enough to know they shouldn't roll marbles in school. The fun begins when she finds a note Ned Dresbach (Grace Steele) is writing to Cleo, and of course she doesn't want to see any more of those.

Sixth act opens in Miss Gertrude Pigman's (Sara May) sophomore domestic science class. Margaret Long (Gene Rader) who is having a dress fitted, gets stuck with a pin several times, and lets everyone know it. After this she seems intent on catching a fly while Miss Gertrude Pigman cuts Nancy Merriman's (Rosemary Jackson) grade for chewing gum and Sara Steinhauser's (Cleo Brown) grade for eating peanuts. Mr Gephart enters and inquires about the condition in which the Hi-Y left the domestic science room. He discovers that Don White had shirked his duty and an egg was found between the prongs of the forks. Mr. Eagleson also comes around with the 'pink edition' for the teachers and takes an interest in the sewing.

The seventh act takes place in Miss Emily Yates' (Gene Rader) eighth grade. As the class hasn't prepared its English asignment she decides to have penmanship so Elsie Brehmer (Cleo Brown) passes out the pens. George Ammer (Grace Steele) tells Miss Yates his pen will not write so she asks him to put it in his mouth, but George cannot do this, as his mother told him he must never put pins in his mouth. Miss Yates then explains his mother said pins and not pens and advises him to 'spit on it.'

The class in the eighth act is in charge of Miss Marian Hitler (Gertrude Lanman) whose green dress greatly enhances the beauty of her titian (red paper) curls. Paul Radcliff (Grace Steel) is given an eighth period and finds it almost impossible to stay—but relents of course 'and stays for Miss Hitler.'

The ninth and last act is J. W. Fetherlin's (Bob Rooney) junior English class Mr. Fetherlin, with his characteristic Ichabod Crane stride, hurries in and announces he has found a compact and that someone should claim it, then as no one does, he assigns the next 175 questions for home work. He thoughtlessly places his feet on his desk while announcing he is going to give a test, but hurriedly removes them only to place them in another comfortable position.

After the test in which Richard Stump (Grace Steele) received the highest score of 98 per cent, he allows them to study while he goes around and peers over each one's shoulder. He kindly relieves Dorothy Riegel (Gene Rader) of a fiction book she is reading and deposits it in the waste basket He then leaves the room only to appear and stick his head in at the other door

Mildred Rummel sophomore, has withdrawn and returned to Pennsylvania.

Facts About Your School

Due to the presence of the feminine contingent of the journalism class, Charlotte Caskey, Margaret Carter, Lucille Hickey, Dorothy Bartley, Evelyn Holland, Mary Helwagen, Mary Kellstadt, and (Waldo Hilyard) at the Herald plant last Saturday, lines were incorrectly added and taken out of the High-st news, when the make-up pair became flustered by the feminine graces at their elbows.

Don and Harry say here's how it should have read:

Members of the sixth grade have constructed a "soup kitchen" for birds, by placing pieces of bread on their discarded Christmas tree, which has been set up in the yard.

Miss Sophia Parks, sixth grade, has obtained samples of Mentholum, a salve, for the entire school. She also obtained samples of soap, cereals, and health products for her own classes.

Sixth grade students have begun a health chart. Health questions are asked and gold stars are distributed each week to pupils who have practiced health habits

Students in Miss Gladys Peters' fifth grade are sending business letters to various chambers of commerce, to receive colored posters. These posters show scenes in various states and are used in the study of home geography

Facts About Your School

Due to the presence of the feminine contingent of the journalism class, Charlotte Caskey, Margaret Carter, Lucille Hickey, Dorothy Bartley, Evelyn Holland, Mary Helwagen, Mary Kellstadt, and (Waldo Hilyard) at the Herald plant last Saturday, lines were incorrectly added and taken out of the High-st news, when the make-up pair became flustered by the feminine graces at their elbows.

Don and Harry say here's how it should have read:

Members of the sixth grade have constructed a "soup kitchen" for birds, by placing pieces of bread on their discarded Christmas tree, which has been set up in the yard.

Miss Sophia Parks, sixth grade, has obtained samples of Mentholum, a salve, for the entire school. She also obtained samples of soap, cereals, and health products for her own classes.

Sixth grade students have begun a health chart. Health questions are asked and gold stars are distributed each week to pupils who have practiced health habits.

Students in Miss Gladys Peters' fifth grade are sending business letters to various chambers of commerce, to receive colored posters. These posters show scenes in various states and are used in the study of home geography.
